Capital punishment Part-5

Place issue on the ballot ---Owen

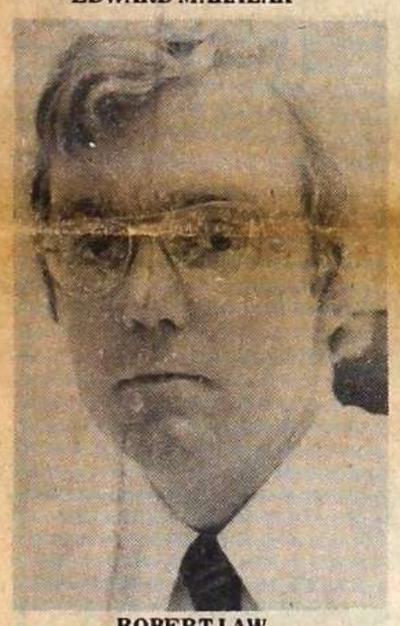
It has been more than 140 years since a person was executed for a criminal act in the State of Michigan. However, that may change in the coming years, if a grassroots movement succeeds in having a constitutional amendment, allowing capital punishment, placed on the 1978 general election ballot.

EDWARD MAHALAK



ROBERT LAW

While residents of the state, specifically Western Wayne County, favor the re-instatement of the death penalty on a ratio of four to one, just the opposite is true of those men elected to represent them in the State Legislature.

Of the state representatives and senator polled this week, the opinion of the majority rejected the return of the death penalty, citing its ineffectiveness as a crime deterrent, its use more so against the poor and due to moral convictions.

State Rep. Edward Mahalak, who represents the 38th District, opposes capital punishment, saying that he has yet to see "any information to convince me that it would be the answer to deterring crime".

Mahalak, a member of the House of Representatives for 12 years, added: "If you look at those states that have capital punishment and those states that don't the rate of convictions is greater in the latter. Juries are less likely to issue the death penalty as a final verdict."

Mahalak went on to say that the death penalty might serve as a deterrent, but that "some people still would use a dangerous weapon to commit murder".

When questioned about mandatory sentencing as opposed to capital punishment, Mahalak said then the state would have to start spending more money, something that would have "to be taken into consideration".

"If a person knows he will go to jail for a criminal act, that will serve as a deterrent," he concluded.

Westland's freshman representative to the State Legislature, Robert Law, said capital punishment has some merit, however, he does not favor "using it carte blanche".

"I think with the Supreme Court rulings and guidelines, it's worth consideration," he said, adding: "Many people appear to be favor of capital punishment because they see a failure in our criminal justice system in dealing with serious crimes."

He went on to say that if people could see a change in the criminal justice system, along such lines as mandatory sentencing, "there would be less pressure for capital punishment".

Law said his decision on whether to support the return of the death penalty would "depend on how it (a statute) were put forth". The representative said such a law would need "a specific goal".

"I wouldn't want to make it the entire impact in the fight against crime," he continued.

Favoring its possible use in cases of the shooting of police officers and public officials, crimes of terrorism and first-degree murder, he added: "You get into the problem of how far down (which crimes) to go to use it (capital punishment). Most people think re-instating it would mean the execution of innocent people, but the protections are very strict for the defendent.

"If it were the only possible deterrent for crime, I would vote for it. We have to begin to deal with the criminal problem."

THOMAS BROWN

According to Westland's other state representative, Rep. Thomas Brown (D-Westland), he believes that capital punishment would be a crime deterrent, and supports changing the constitution to allow the death penalty.

In fact, Brown is passing out petitions as part of a state-wide effort to put the question to voters on the 1978 ballot. Since the Michigan Constitution contains a provision prohibiting the death penalty, it would take a vote of the people to change the Constitution.

"What bothers me, in the last 10 or 15 years in Michigan, is that there

Tragedy averted

Railroad cars recently derailed from the Norfolk and Western Railroad just west of I-275 in Romulus. Several cars toppled off the tracks near the new freeway bridge, narrowly averting what could have been a major tragedy. Railroad workmen cleaned up the debris and salvaged wheels and other parts from the badly crumpled cars.

City wide contract let

Council approves reassessment

Romulus City Council has voted to enter into a contract with the Wayne County Bureau of Taxation for a city-wide property reassessment program to be completed by 1978. The vote was unanimous, with councilman Jimmie Raspberry abstaining.

The Council made its decision on the recommendation of City Tax Assessor Dave Krause in order to comply with the Romulus City Charter, section 5.6B which states: "All properties in the city of Romulus, personal and-or real, shall be reassessed at least once every eight years after the dates of this charter." The charter was adopted in 1970.

The County Bureau of Taxation was chosen, at the recommendation of the City Assessor, because of its low bid of $80,815. The next lowest bid was $186,500, submitted by the firm of E. Martin Gulewicz of East Detroit.

Another reason the County Bureau was selected is because of extensive professional experience gained in completing other reassessment programs for neighboring communities. The City of Taylor satisfactorily contracted with the County for a tax reassessment in 1975, as did Huron Township in 1976.

The Romulus contract calls for interest-free payments to be made over a four year period, beginning next month.

Krause said that a complete reassessment program was badly needed in Romulus, "since the last complete reassessment was in 1938, and many things have developed since then which effects the values of property in Romulus."

Some examples cited by Krause were the expansion of Metropolitan Airport, placing flight paths directly over many Romulus homes, construction of new freeways, such as I-275, and a buildup of industry in several areas of the city.

Krause announced he is preparing three articles, to appear later this spring, detailing the status of the present property tax system in Romulus and what the reassessment program will mean to Romulus home owners.

Conference hosts city officials

A dozen Romulus City officials were among 600 municipal leaders and legislators who travelled to Lansing to attend last week's 11th annual legislative conference, sponsored by the Michigan Municipal League.

Meeting in the Lansing Civic Center Feb. 23, the participants came to discuss various items affecting their cities and villages, including property tax reform, open meetings and records, zoning and planning and employee relations.

The opening session began with a discussion of the House view of 1977 State legislative issues by House Speaker Bobby D. Crim (D-Davison) and House Minority Leader Dennis O. Cawthorne (R-Manistee).

Both speakers generally agreed that this year is a better one financially for the state, with an expected 12 percent increase in revenues or $400,000,000 over 1976.

However, they also agreed that there are several problems that must be attended to in 1977. Among the items each leader agreed must receive priority response by legislators, were a reform of the state unemployment compensation system which has recently come under fire for alleged massive fraud among claimants and administrators.

Both also mentioned the general areas of crime and mandatory sentencing, transportation and energy problems and the so-called "rainy day," or Economic Stabilization Fund.

Following the opening session, members of the Romulus contingent attended various concurrent workshop sessions dealing with the newly-enacted open meetings and open records legislation, employee relations and unemployment compensation and a review of pending legislation dealing with city zoning and planning.

The groups then broke for lunch to hear Governor William G. Milliken ask the League members for support in helping several of his administration's proposals become a reality.

Among those he mentioned were a transportation program, an additional revenue sharing program, his budget stabilization proposal and the Neighborhood Improvement Program.

General sessions in the afternoon focused on the Governor's budget, problems of cities and a view of state legislative issues discussed by Senate Majority Leader, William Faust (D- Westland) and Senate Minority Leader, Robert W. Davis (R - Gaylord).

On Thursday, several post-conference workshops for municipal officials were held at the nearby Olds Plaza Hotel.

Those attending the conference from Romulus included Mayor James Stewart; Clerk Leonard Folmar; Teasurer John Lewkowicz; Councilmen Robert Martin, William Oakley and Jimmie Raspberry; City Attorney Robert Reese; Community Development Director Steve Bonczek and his assistant, Eugene Yagley; Deputy City Clerk Thelma Shivel; City Council secretary Rita McLenon; Mayor's secretary Bonnie Lozier and Public Information Officer Jay Young.

Mayor Stewart said that he was very pleased that Romulus was so well represented at the conference and added that he hoped each participant brought back valuable information and established new contacts to aid them in fulfilling their various areas of responsibility.

Romulus is one of 473 member cities of the Michigan Municipal League and has benefited greatly from association with the organization, according to Stewart.

Mayor greets Senator Riegle

Romulus Mayor James C. Stewart and City Clerk Leonard J. Folmar attended the formal opening of U.S. Senator Donald W. Riegle's Allen Park regional office last week. The newly-elected Senator, who won the seat of the late Phil Hart, was on hand to personally greet elected officials from the Second, 15th and 16th Congressional Districts, the area served by the Allen Park Office, located at 5637 Allen Road.

In greeting the assembled leaders, Riegle said the office was one of seven "regional problem-solving centers" he has opened throughout the State.

He welcomed suggestions and promised to help constituents with problems such as Social Security, veteran affairs and questions about the military.

Riegle also announced he will serve on the International Finance, Human Resource and Senate Commerce committees.

As a member of the Consumer Affairs subcommittee, he promised a full-scale federal investigation into the Michigan PBB controversy, complete with official federal hearings to be held in Michigan in the coming months.

The City of Romulus lies within the 15th Congressional District, and is represented in the U.S. House of Representatives by William D. Ford, (D - Taylor).

College bound

Approximately 60 speakers appeared at Romulus High School's first career day recently, and one of the leaders was Cammie Sleet of the University of Michigan—Dearborn Admissions office. Some of the topics she covered were what classes to take to prepare for college, costs, grade average needed to be accepted and financial assistance available to new college students.

Here's how

Ron Tocco of Ron's Portraits, was one of nearly 60 Career Day speakers at Romulus High School recently. Students, teachers and lecturers all thought it was a truly valuable training experience , a school spokesman said. The photography class was one of the largest sessions during the day. And apparently teachers and students want to improve and expand Career Day for next year.

Bills would expand Medicare coverage

Four bills to expand Medicare coverage for senior citizens have been introduced in Congress by Michigan Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District).

One would provide Medicare payment for examination, diagnosis and treatment of eyesight problems. Under the current law, only cataract patients are covered.

A second bill would expand mental health coverage to include the services of psychologists. At present, only psychiatrists' bills are covered.

The third proposal would enable senior citizens to receive Medicare coverage for diagnostic work by chiropractors. Current regulations offer chiropractic coverage only for correction of conditions predetermined by X-Ray. Congressman Ford's plan would require Medicare payment for X-Rays and other chiropractic services.

Ford's fourth bill would extend Medicare coverage to services performed by dentists, on the same basis as physicians. In addition, payment would be authorized for hospitalization required in connection with dental services.

"The continued pressure of inflation and rising costs for health care have put an unfair burden on our nation's senior citizens," Congressman Ford said. "These are elderly, retired persons, who live, for the most part, on fixed incomes. They are in the age group which has the most need for health-care services."

Ford co-sponsored the four Medicare bills in conjunction with Congressman James C. Corman (D-Calif.), a member of the Ways and Means Committee, which will be considering the legislation.

Bureau provides speakers

The Speakers Bureau at The University of Michigan Hospital now is scheduling presentations. Physicians, administrators, and other medical personnel at the hospital are available to meet with community and civic groups to discuss medical research, new treatment methods and health care issues.

A 20-minute slide show, highlighting recent advances at the medical complex, also is available through the Speakers Bureau. The show, with accompanying tape, covers 10 patient care topics.

Teachers try metrics in learning program

Teachers in the Romulus Community Schools are being taught all about metrics in a three-session program, conducted at Halecreek Elementary School by Dr. Donald Buckeye, a professor of mathematics at Eastern Michigan University.

The three classes were set up jointly by Richard Good, principal of Merriman Elementary School and Arthur McPharlin, principal of Halecreek School.

Each of the study sessions is two hours long and approximately 24 teachers are taking the classes.

Good, said, according to law, the nation will switch over to the metric system on Jan. 1, 1980, and Romulus is trying to make the transition a smooth one.

'All participants will write a unit covering some aspect of the metric program...'

Teachers from Wick, Beverly and Hayti Elementary schools previously attended a workshop in the Wayne-Westland Community School and were greatly benefited, Good said.

Dr. Buckeye, using a video tape recording in his study sessions, is instructing the teachers how to teach metrics to their students by means of instructional, fun games. The emphasis is on "learning by doing."

"All participants will write a unit covering some aspect of the metric program," Good said. "Then a collection of all units will be made and placed at each school for the students to study."

Learning metric

According to a law recently passed by Congress, the United States will transfer to the metric system of measurement by Jan. 1, 1980. To make the transition as smooth as possible, Romulus teachers are being instructed in metrics so they can teach it to their students. Some of the local teachers recently took part in the 3-day program, held at Halecreek Elementary School in Romulus and taught by Dr. Donald Buckeye (right), a mathematics professor at Eastern Michigan University. — ANP photo.

Legislators speak out against death penalty

are people who feel they have the right to mistreat youngsters, kill senior citizens — defenseless people," Brown said. "This has gotten way out of line, and something has to be done.

"If people want capital punishment, that's what we should have."

Brown supports putting the question on the ballot, and supports the re-instatement of the death penalty, probably for first-degree murders, or killing in the act of rape or other violent crimes toward the elderly, police officers and other victims.

Petition drives to put the question on the ballot are not new, Brown added. Petitions were circulated in 1972, but "we were late in getting started".

However, the well-publicized heinous crimes of murder in recent years have changed the minds of people who formerly were against the death penalty.

"You don't have too much problem finding people to sign petitions this year," he said.

Brown sees no moral dilemma in handing out the death penalty for certain crimes, particularly if the people of the state by ballot say, that they want it.

"I personally support the drive, and capital punishment," Brown said.

State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland), Senate Majority leader, said while he does not object to putting the question on the ballot for the people of Michigan to decide, he personally is against capital punishment.

There are two ways the question could get on the ballot — by citizen petitions, or by a two-thirds majority of vote of the legislature.

Faust said the question probably will have to go the petition route, since he does not see enough votes in the legislatue to put the question on the ballot.

"I would support a resolution to let the people decide," he added. "But I am personally opposed to capital punishment, and I would not vote to change the Constitution.

"In my reading and association with the subject, in my judgment only poor people are executed. It is impossible for the poor to have the same legal opportunities as the rich. This is one area where there is not equal opportunity for justice."

In addition to the unequal application of the death penalty, Faust objects to it on moral grounds, saying that one murder cannot justify another.

"I think Michigan showed strong enlightenment when it became the first state years ago not to have the death penalty."

He believes that a murderer is sick, and should be kept from society, with mandatory sentences, and no parole being the way to insure that this is done.

Although capital punishment is becoming a "popular cause," Faust said he doesn't believe it is the solution to rising crime.

He added, however, that he would consider the death penalty on a federal level as a possible punishment for treason, an act he believes to be the "highest crime".

"Our heritage gives us the option of leaving the country if we don't believe in it, instead of trying to bring it (the country) down" he said. "Treason endangers the rest of the people in the nation."

But even in the case of treason, the circumstances would have to be "extraordinary" to warrant death penalty, he added.

Also voicing opposition to capital punishment was State Rep. Gary Owen (D-22nd District), who said he would like to see the issue placed on the ballot, although he could not support such a proposal.

"Capital punishment is a very emotional and moralistic issue," the representative said. "To speak about it as if it were a very simple yes or no issue, such as a millage vote, is impossible."

Owen said there are two very important aspects that must be considered in weighing the pros and cons of capital punishment: its possible use by society as revenge and its effect as a crime deterrent.

He spoke out against the death penalty being used for retaliation, saying: "I don't believe society could be so barbaric to allow it. It is not society's right to get revenge."

In speaking about capital punishment as a crime deterrent, Owen said to date he has seen no evidence to support such claims. He added that most statistics stem from a time when the United States was basically rural in nature, and went on to say that with the shift to urban living, the statistics some day may prove differently.

"If people argue that capital punishment is a crime deterrent, then it follows that criminals should be killed in a most brutal fashion with the maximum (media) exposure (to achieve that end)," Owen continued. "Most want the criminal killed, but don't want to have to see it.

"It also should be remembered that under capital punishment, it is more difficult to convict, and some criminals that otherwise would go to prison, don't. It's harder to convince juries of that person's guilt, and they usually are unwilling to have a person put to death."

Owen said he favors the issue being placed on the ballot.

"People should be allowed to vote on it," he said. "The right to make the decision lies with them. The entire state should vote, not a few select lawmakers."

RHS bandsmen eye No. 1 rating

Romulus High School Symphony Band will go after its second No. 1 rating in a row Saturday when it competes in the District Band Festival at Livonia Stevenson High School.

"Our band received Romulus High School's first No. 1, or superior, rating last year, and I feel we have a good chance of earning another superior rating this year," said Ralph Miller, director of the band.

Romulus is scheduled to play at 1:25 p.m. Saturday as it vies for top ratings among 15 area high schools.

"Both the band and myself are working hard for another superior rating and we would appreciate as many parents and others to support us by attending our performance," Miller said.

Included in the high schools seeking top honors are Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Bentley, Highland Park, Grosse Pointe South, Livonia Churchill, Jackson Northwest, Southgate Shafer, Clarenceville, Romulus, Livonia Bentley, Riverview, Southgate, Robichaud, Dearborn Heights Crestwood and Grosse Pointe North.

Sponsored by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, the competition rates each high school on a scale from five to one, with one being the top the top rating possible.

Bands are rated by a panel of three judges, who evaluate each group as it performs a march, a required selection and a rendition of its own choice. In addition, each band must sight-read two new pieces of music for an additional judge.

All Romulus band members will be dressed in their concert uniforms with white shirt, black bow tie and black polished shoes.

Huron District opens its sustaining drive

The Huron District is kicking off its annual Sustaining Membership Enrollment drive to help sponsor the nearly 3,000 Scouting youth in the community.

Scouting served more than 60,000 youth in the greater Detroit area last year. More than 1,700 packs, troops and posts are sponsored by a church, synagogue, school, service club, fraternal organization, veteran group ro other community groups in partnership with the Detroit Area Council and the Boy Scouts of America.

About half of the operating expenses for the Detroit Area Council are met by funds provided by the United Foundation and other community funds. Other essential dollar support must be raised by the council and annual Sustaining Membership Enrollment.

"Sustaining memberships will make Scouting happen through more than 25,000 volunteer leaders in our state," said Tom Robinson, executive of the Huron District, which has nearly 750 volunteer leaders overseeing 87 troops, packs and posts.

The Huron District includes the cities of Romulus, Belleville, Woodhaven and Taylor and the townships of Van Buren, Sumpter, Huron and Brownstown.

The United Fund covers approximately 47 per cent of the Boy Scout budget and the rest is raised by soliciting businesses and individuals.

"Our workers are starting to contact people in our Huron District to ask for their financial help and support," Robinson said.

According to Robinson, who is a member of the Detroit Area Council, scouting opens its path toward maturity to all boys ages 8 to 18 from all racial, ethnic, religious and economic backgrounds.

"Through its character-building process, Scouting instills in our boys the merits of both individualism and teamwork," he said.

Leo Kalota is Sustaining Membership Enrollment Chairman, while Sumpter Township Supervisor Robert Demski, Huron Township Supervisor John Puskar, Robinson and Peter J. Glaab, community chairman for Huron Township, are all active in the financial drive.

Like MERIT, MERIT 100's are packed with 'Enriched Flavor' tobacco. Tobacco fortified with certain key flavor-rich ingredients isolated in cigarette smoke, and proven to deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

We taste-tested MERIT 100's against some of the toughest competition we could find: higher tar 100mm cigarettes.

Here are the results.

MACPA offers explanation

How do state tax law changes affect you?

(This is the sixth in a series of articles offering advice on filing 1976 income tax returns, prepared by the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants.)

How do recent changes in the Michigan income tax laws affect you? The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants (MACPA) offers the following comments on filling your 1976 state income tax return.

You may obtain copies of tax forms and instructions through local offices of the Michigan Department of Treasury, post offices, banks and tax return preparers, if you have not already received tax forms in the mail.

You should file a return for 1976 on or before April 15, if your federal adjusted gross income is greater than the total amount that you are allowed for Michigan personal and dependency exemptions, or if you are eligible for a refund. You may not have to file a federal return, but still may be required to file a Michigan return.

For calendar 1976, the tax rate increased to 4.6 percent. The amount for each exemption remains at $1,500. The homestead property tax credit is available again this year to all homeowners and renters, with special credit computations available to senior citizens and widows of senior citizens, servicemen, veterans, blind persons, paraplegics, quadrapelgics and totally and permanently disabled persons. If your credit exceeds your tax liability you may receive a refund up to a maximum of $1,200.

The following forms are available for claiming this credit:

— Senior citizens and widows of senior citizens, MI-1040CR-1;

—Active servicemen, eligible veterans, widows of veterans or blind persons, MI-1040CR-2;

—Paraplegic or quadrapelgic, totally and permanently disabled, MI-1040CR-3; and —Others that qualify for credit, MI-1040CR-4.

Some claimants may qualify for credit under more than one category. They should compare and choose the one that works to their best advantage.

The credit for homeowners and renters (general claims) equals 60 percent of the amount by which their property taxes exceed 3.5 percent of their household (i.e., spendable) income. The interpretation of household income has been expanded this year to include additional nontaxable income items, such as life and health insurance premiums paid by employers. Renters will base their claim on 17 percent of rent paid, which will be considered in lieu of taxes in the computation of the credit. Persons living in a mobile home park may claim $3 per month and 17 percent of the rent paid. Permanent occupants of nursing homes may use $125 per month or 30 percent of the monthly charges, whichever is greater.

Individuals who have signed an agreement with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources under the Farmland and Open Space Preservation Act may claim a special credit through the use of Form MI-1040CR-5.

Owners of businesses, operated as sole proprietorships, partnerships, or Sub-Chapter S Corporations, that have filed a Michigan Single Business Tax return may be entitled to claim a partial credit for the tax paid by filing form MI-1040CR-6. The credit allowed businesses in prior years for the personal property taxes paid on inventory has been repealed.

You also may claim a credit for contributions to Michigan colleges and universities and to public libraries in the state. The maximum credit for these contributions is $200 on a joint return.

The Department of Treasury has assigned additional staff to assist you if you have any difficulty completing your claim.

The CPAs also point out that if any of the following items were included in your federal adjusted gross income, be sure to claim a deduction for them: retirement or pension benefits from a Michigan public retirement system, retirement or pension benefits from other sources up to a maximum of $7,500 or $10,000 on a joint return, refunds of state or city income taxes, and proceeds and prizes won in the Michigan Lottery or state-regulated bingo games. A deduction also is allowed for contributions of up to $50 to political parties or candidates.

If any of your federal schedules show a loss (i.e., business, farm, rental, capital) or if you have made adjustments to income on line 14 of your Federal Form 1040 then you must include a copy of these schedules with your Michigan return when you file it.

There are special rules for: capital gains on properties acquired before Oct. 1, 1967; non-residents; income derived from another state; persons moving into or out of the state; extensions of the due date of the return and amended returns. You should seek professional assistance in these areas.

Before mailing your returns, check that you have completed the following items: the return has been signed by both you and your spouse; your address on the return is complete; Copy 2 of your Form W-2 is attached; mathematical computations have been checked; a check is attached for any balance due; and if you have an overpayment you have indicated whether it is to be refunded or applied to next year's estimated tax payments.

In conclusion, MACPA also reminds you that if any changes are made to your federal return during the year because of an audit or an amended return, be sure that you notify the Michigan Department of Treasury. If additional taxes are due, you may be liable for a negligence penalty, if you fail to notify the state within 60 days of any such changes.

Scout Pack 821 observes annual Blue-Gold Banquet

A funny western story, told by Judy Beard, with the audience responding on cue, helped to break the ice at the annual Blue and Gold Banquet of Cub Scout Pack 821 of Haggerty Elementary School.

The opening ceremony for the annual event was led by Den. 1, with Robert Thornbladhl, assistant football coach at the University of Michigan acting as the guest speaker.

Also guests at the banquet were Haggerty School Principal Clyde Batzer, institutional representative Jerry Black and Scoutmaster and Mrs. Robert Crook. He is the head of Boy Scout Troop 821.

Members of Den 4 also entertained the diners with a skit, for which they made their own animal costumes. The skit was an elective for the youths and Scott Dicks was the narrator.

Twenty-four achievement badges were presented during the banquet. The youth earing the awards were Richard Oster, Randy Appleton, Herbert Hoerig, Paul Brown, William Beard, Scott Dicks, James Trammel, Robert Weidmayer, Kraig Wilson, Timothy Strawbridge, Mike Crawford, Keven McArthur, Clayton Viers and Kenneth Durbal.

Each of the Scouts received their awards and a mini-birthday cake in recognition of the Cub Scouts' 47th birthday.

Special recognition was given to the den leaders — Stewart Appleton, Webelos, Judy Beard, Darlene Klacking, Linda Owens, Elizabeth Butler and Diane Krukowski—by the Scouts. A special thanks also went to Ms. Krukowski, the banquet chairman.

A little extra for parents attending the banquet was a $25 raffle.

A closing chorus of "Good Night, Cub Scouts" helped conclude the evening, with Den 4 handling the closing ceremony.

March will be recruiting month for the pack, and those youths interested in Scouting can call 699-2272 for further information.

An editorial opinion

Congress gets pay raise for doing nothing

The new legislative pay increase that Congress has granted themselves, by not voting to adopt a resolution of disapproval, took effect February 20.

The 29 percent raise, recomended by the Presidential Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries, automatically took effect when neither House of Congress voted to reject it.

The Federal raise like our State Legislative pay increases recently, is the result of a new approach toward the sticky problem faced by legislators when they want a raise.

Unlike you and me, they do not go to the boss and ask for one on the basis of what they have accomplished, rather they have now established a procedure that allows them to Rip-Off the public without the necessity of even a vote.

In years gone by, if our elected officials wanted a raise, they were required to stand before their constituents and take a public position by answering a roll call vote that became a matter of public record. If you disagreed with your representative's vote you had the option of selecting someone else to serve you in that position after the next election. This procedure is called democracy.

Part of it is now gone.

Today has become the age of the non-decision. The record album will arrive if you do not decide against it. The eight track tape will be sent in 10 days, if you do not return the enclosed card. The new raise will take effect automatically if you do not vote against it.

This is a fantastic new system developed by marketing experts to take full advantage of one of the worst traits of homosapiens. Procrastination.

It didn't take our fearless elected officials very long to recognize the potential of such a system when applied to protecting their posteriors from the wolf pack.

Although this principle has been in operation behind the scenes of government for years (bills referred to committee where they will die without a vote being taken), it is a relatively new development whereby the non-decision could be affectively applied to the area of legislative pay increases.

In Michigan the State Legislature has established a questionable collection of "experts" that have been titled The State Officers Compensation Commission (SOCC).

This group has been charged by the legislature with the sole responsibility of determining if, when, and how much more the legislature will get in their next pay-checks. And since fiscal responsibility never seems to appear as a strong suit in their resumes, they don't fool around with increases of less than 25 percent.

The era of the non-decision has now spread even to our own communities. In Wayne and Westland, the City Council has adopted a similar procedure for the inconspicuous grab for the taxpayers pocket book.

But to give credit where credit is due, the first successful application of the non-decision to legislative pay increases was accomplished by our Congressmen in Washington.

It was their foresight that has broken new ground across our country for non-responsibility, non-repercussion, non-decision for their personal gain.

We feel that if our elected leaders were only half as dedicated, to solving major problems, as they appear to be, to circumventing popular opinion, our country would have no major problems, and they would be worth a raise.

On the brighter side

Keep 'em on the ball, Granny

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

Basketball is reaching its peak about now and everyone will be going wild during "March Madness" when all the high schools battle for the state championship.

It was with this thought in mind that I went to the mailbox the other day and noticed a letter for me from my dear old grandmother. I was overjoyed at the sight. My relative, Granny Two-shoes, older sister of Goody, had taken time to write.

I opened the envelope and read these words:

Dear Grandson,

I had quite an exciting time last night. You know how far our younger generation has slipped nowadays and gone downhill. Well, last night I saw lights on at the high school gym and decided to find out for myself how bad things are.

I got the shock of my life. After lacing up my high button shoes and turning up my hearing aid, I took a slug of Geritol and headed for the high school.

Well, Grandson, things were off to a bad start. The gym was already packed with an unruly sort of oddly-dressed people and I could barely squeeze in. First thing I saw was girls clad in their younger sister's dresses (they only reached half-way to their knees), yelling for the people to fight. These eight girls were dressed in bright sweaters (probably to make up for their short skirts) and they came running onto the floor, screaming: "Fight, Fight, Fight!". And you know how I abhor violence, especially when it concerns me.

Then these two men in pajama tops came walking onto the floor with whistles in their mouths. That was bad enough, but then some skinny, underfed boys came dashing onto the flooor in colored undershirts and bright-colored Bee-vee-dees. I blushed.

Everyone was screaming at one another and I figured if there was going to be a riot or fight. it was better to have it inside than out on the street. Well, everyone sat down and the man in the pajama tops tossed the ball in the air and that started the awfulest rig-a-morole you ever saw.

There were five skinny boys in blue undershirts and five underfed lads in red undershirts. And were they ever selfish! The ones in red never threw the ball to the boys in blue. Is that what they're teaching our kids in school today? The ones out on the floor must have been very clumsy because they dropped the ball every step they took, and they only used one hand. Personally, I've always said, "Two hands for beginners!"

The best I could figure out, they were trying to throw the orange ball through that little iron circle with the fish net around it and the thick plastic window behind it. The taller boys would grab the ball off the big window behind the fish net and give it to the shorter kids to bounce. I thought that was nice of them.

But the stingy man in pajamas would blow his whistle and take the ball away. Then a boy would raise his hand, to ask a question I guess, but the man in pajamas never answered. He'd just put a boy in a different colored undershirt into a circle that was painted on the floor. And while everyone stared at this lonely boy, he'd try to throw it through the fish net.

The fish net must have had some new-fangled electric gadget on it or something. Because everytime the ball passed through the iron ring, lights would start flashing on the gym wall. But whoever bought the clock for the high school gym really got gypped. It only has eight minutes on it. And not only that, it only runs backwards.

That's where all our tax money goes, I guess!

Half the boys in their underclothes were seated while the others ran around in circles on the floor. And I'll say this one thing, though, they must not have been able to afford chairs for the boys in the undershirts. Because they sat on benches just like the rest of us.

A man in a business suit was in charge of each bench full of boys. And he must have been a mean ole man because everytime a boy would come running off the floor he'd give him a swat on the seat. But with discipline so lacking today, I guess he thought they needed it. Each time a boy came to the bench from the center of the floor, someone would throw a jacket around his shoulders. I don't know why he didn't wear it all the time if he was chilly.

These men in business suits kept yelling at the two men in pajama tops and making funny faces at them. One even shook his towel at one of them. I guess he wanted him to stop interfering and go take a shower.

Just about this time, someone must have tried to drive a big truck through the gym because every so often I'd hear a horn honk real loud. But I guess he never got through, because I never saw the truck. It did cause a disturbance, though. Everytime he'd honk his truck horn, a scared boy would go running lickity-split across the floor.

Well, grandson, I'm still quite upset over everything that happened last night even if there wasn't any fight. And I'm still not sure just what was going on. But the more I study it, the more bewildered I get.

From what I've written, can you give me any solution to this problem at our high school? If you can't, maybe I'll write Ann Landers or go see the school principal.

Love,
Granny Two-Shoes

Do you have any suggestions how I can answer Granny?

Tips for would be writers

By JOHN KEASLER

I'm reading the most fascinating book I've read in years, titled "The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin." And why I missed reading it until this late date I don't know, as I've read many biographies of him, for reasons I can't fathom as I don't usually have heroes, but Franklin has been my hero, strangely so, since I was a very small boy.

Among other choice parcels, the autobiography offers a very good course in how to learn to write.

When Franklin was a kid his father wanted him to be a clergyman. When that didn't take he had him indentured to be a candlemaker. Then, this and that. But then, "because of my bookish inclination" and the complete inability to learn arithmetic, started studying the occupation of printing.

He really wanted to go to sea. And he narrowly escaped being a poet, before moving from his native, proper Boston to improper Philadelphia. But hang on for he said:

"I now took a fancy to poetry, and made some little pieces. One was called 'The Lighthouse Tragedy' and, being current news, of a drowning, sold wonderfully, the event being recent," Franklin wrote. "They were wretched stuff ... in the Grub-Street-ballad style ..."

Now we get down to the brief nitty-gritty writing course, which I've never seen equaled:

"Prose writing has been of great use to me in the course of my life," Franklin said, "and was a principal means of my advancement. I shall tell you how, in such a situation, I acquired what little ability I have in that way."

(By "such a situation" Franklin means he was dead broke all the time as a youngster — and even as a young man — and despite all the very sound advice he gave, was not above loaning money to deadbeats ... and, in fact, cheerfully admitting one chap didn't pay him back due to his fury over Franklin's making serious overtures to his friend's mistress. Tsk, tsk, tsk, Benjamin.)

Franklin writes on: "I had the advantage of correct spelling and grammar (which I owed to the printing house) but fell far short in elegance of expression, in method and perspicuity ...

"... about this time I met with an odd volume of the 'Spectator.' I had never before seen any of them. I bought it, read it over and over, and was much delighted with it. I thought the writing was excellent ...

"With this view I made short notes of the sentiment in each sentence, laid them down a few days and then, withoug looking at the Spectator, tried to complete the papers again by expressing each hinted sentiment at length, and as fully as it had been expressed before, in any suitable words that should come to mind.

"Then I compared my work with the original Spectator and discovered some of my faults, and corrected them."

(What might add to the amazement when you really think about this boy doing all this is that, insofar as can be determined, he made up the method himself. Right there, I think he just did the first couple of semesters of journalism school in those last few paragraphs.)

He continues: "After correcting those faults, I found I wanted a stock of words, or a readiness in recollecting and using them, which I thought I should have acquired before that time if I had gone on making verses; since the continual occasion for words of the same import, but of different sound for the rhyme, would have laid me under a constant necessity of searching for variety and also have tended to fix that variety in my mind, and make me master it.

"Therefore I took some of the tales and tuned them in to verse; and, after a time, when I had pretty well forgotten the prose, turned them back again.

"I also, at times, jumbled my collection of notes into confusion, and after some weeks endeavored to reduce them into the best order, before I began to form the full sentences and complete the paper. This was to teach me a method in the arrangement of thoughts.

"By comparing my work afterwards with the original, I discovered many faults and corrected them. But I sometimes had the pleasure of fancying that, in certain particulars of small import, I had been lucky enough to improve the method or the language ..."

Got the Franklin method straight? Simply get next Sunday's New York Times, take notes on it, wait a while, rewrite your notes into the complete stories, turn them into verse, jumble them around, much later put them back into prose and have a better New York Times.

Oddly, most people who want to "write" refuse to take such simple hints.

I guess they don't really have the true gift which was in the last sentence of Franklin's, which I used, where he says he had been "lucky" enough to improve the method or the language."

Obviously, Benjamin Franklin shares that same gift of all writers. He's the biggest possible ham.

Health Beat

'An LPN is a professional nurse---'

By RUSS TUTTLE
Director, Community Relations
Peoples Community Hospital Authority

If you saw her walking down the hall in the Annapolis Hospital, you'd guess by the uniform, the white hat, the stethoscope around her neck that she was a nurse. And, you'd be right.

The odds are, however, that you'd most likely not know that she was a special nurse known properly as an LPN (Licensed Practical Nurse).

It was a desire to differentiate between the LPN and RN which led us to interview Pauline Williams, LPN, who is assigned to the new Oncology and Intermediate Care Units at Annapolis.

Mrs. Williams is a native of Detroit, but she has lived most of her adult life in Wayne. She has six children; a reality which possibly led her ulimately to opt for a career in practical nursing.

She said she graduated from the Ann Arbor School of Practical Nursing in 1973, and immediately came to work at Annapolis.

"With the children at home, it was virtually impossible for me to take the time to attend either the diploma school or the community college course to satisfy the requirements for an RN.

"The LPN school in Ann Arbor, while a vigorous 12-month course, seemed to be a viable alternative for some one in my situation," she said.

We asked Mrs. Williams to define LPN, and she responded as follows: "An LPN is a professional nurse who is specially trained to observe a patient for specific signs and symptoms, and who understands the significance of these signs and symptoms.

"We know, for instance, that a high blood pressure reading means different things for different diagnoses. Our training alerts us to the subtle differences in meaning, and we are able to report accurately to the RN in charge of the floor," she said.

And this is one key. An LPN reports to an RN. "Ordinarily, we do not interface directly with the physician managing a case. The principal interface is between the RN and the physician, and we get our orders from, and report to, the RN," Mrs. Williams said.

LPN's change dressings, manage the care of in-dwelling catheters, take care of chest tubes, collect body specimens (but do not draw blood), render suction therapy, perform decubiti care (treats bedsores), accomplish pre-operative and post-operative teaching, and in Mrs. Williams' case, pass medications.

She said that she took post-graduate training at Schoolcraft College, and then successfully passed the State of Michigan examination which licensed her to pass medications to patients. You will notice, then, on her name tag the Roman numeral I following the designation LPN. The I signifies an LPN qualified to the highest responsibilities of her art.

When the Oncology Unit opened in November 1976, Mrs. Williams was one of the first LPN's assigned to practice in this very special service.

"We do not lie to an oncology patient," she said, "instead we work with all that's in us to help alleviate the fears and doubts which almost always require as much treatment as the disease itself.

"If you wish, call it tender loving care. We hold hands, and yes, I've even cried with a patient. And why not? It's a myth to believe that because one is trained in a field such as mine that one no longer has any humane feelings.

"Obviously, these moments of personal surrender to difficult situations must be short-lived and attention must be quickly directed to the physical problem.

"But don't ever think that health care professionals are dispassionate automatons simply going through a programmed routine."

And we saw a display of professionalism and emotion just as we were leaving to write this piece.

An oncology patient stopped us to talk with Mrs. Williams. It was simple small talk — no one was trying to solve the problems of the world during this tender moment.

Then the patient's eyes misted over with tears and she hugged him for a short moment.

That's all. Just a hug, a squeeze of his hand, a sincere smile. And for that time, it was the perfect medicine.

Kinsolving

Potomac Ethics

By LES KINSOLVING

For years, Wisconsin's Sen. William Proxmire and California Congressman John Moss have been almost lonely voices in their recurrent protests that the use of government limousines to convey White House staffers from home to work is illegal under Title 31, Section 638 A.

Their protests had no more effect upon the consciences of such limousine officials as Ford News Secretary Ron Nessen, than when one other member of the White House press corps and I raised this issue during Nessen's daily news briefings.

Mr. Nessen would either respond in the lofty manner of a British Prime Minister dealing with a city clerk from the Australian Outback or else treat this manner of his being illegally chauffeured as if it were a huge joke.

Nessen even ordered his limousine brought onto the runway at Andrews Air Force Base where with its engines running he would be picked up and kept warm — in full view of those ordinary mortals called reporters, who were obliged to sprint over the long and frozen runway to far more modest modes of transportation.

But only four days after his Inauguration, Jimmy Carter took the economy axe to this insufferable trapping of the Republican royalist regime. No more of such chauffeured limousines will be allowed for White House officials, so that Carter News Secretary Jody Powell will like the rest of us get himself to work in his own car and at no expense to the taxpayers.

Our new President has focused a similarly evil eye upon that fleet of Air Force Ones at Andrews Air Force Base which have been used and misused with enormously expensive regularity by a Republican Administration which perennially portrayed itself as the Apostolate of Thrift.

Still another magnificent development emerging from the first Carter Cabinet meeting is the fact that The Great Smile frowns whenever he remembers what he describes as the "oceanic" deluge of paper forms sent to him from Washington, when he was a peanut farmer with five employees. Attention Mount Bureaucracy Our New Leader looks upon such forms as "persistent irritants."

As if this were not enough Balm In Gilead for only the fourth day in office, our new President went on to disclose that what he termed a "profusion of regulations" is due to a profusion of government lawyers.

A Democratic President who is devoted to economy is proof that the age of miracles has not ceased. Thank you Miz Lillian for bringing forth such a phenomenon.

Councilperson objects to ANP story

To the Editor:

Your headline in last weeks Romulus Roman serves well neither the community nor the profession of journalism.

I am inclined to believe that you thought up the caption before you heard the tape of the meeting. And, perhaps thinking the caption too clever to waste, you neglected to notice it did not fit the news you were reporting.

However, let us review the actual happenings.

Elsewhere in last weeks Romulus Roman, you will find a very expensive printing of a newly adopted water and sewer ordinance with a 30 percent increase in rates. Did you overlook this in your eagerness to use a catchy caption phrase to slander the city council?

The city council, at its last meeting did adopt a rate increase and a revised ordinance.

Was the council action deliberately ignored? Surely the Romulus Roman is not trying to further the gap in understanding between the council and the community. The fact also is that there has NOT been a study, we have NOT had an evaluation of the department, we have NOT made recommendations for its reduction or improvement and at this point, I am beginning to wish that I had voted "politically" rather than cooperatively.

Spurred by the mayor's ruthless and needless action of laying off badly needed laborers hired under the CETA (Federal) program, and assured by the mayor that there would be a study, the council attempted to relieve the alleged "crisis" in the water and sewer department by voting a modest increase and revising the ordinance.

Now the council finds itself accused of "fiddling" although it is the mayor and administration who plays with the lives of the people of the community by claiming that there is no money for such a study and that layoffs are to increase because of the council.

The mayor sniveles that he "inherited" his problems. When he was running for office did he not assure us that he knew what the problems of the city were and that he had the answers to solve them?

He blames the council for all his woes, but five of those members were his "endorsed" team of candidates with whom he vowed he could work.

Now, let's take a look at the article presumably prepared by our new employee recently hired by the mayor, Mr. Jay Young, who we shall assume, will be the more literate voice of the mayor, at least in print.

Mr. Young reports with pride that the Federal grants and community development department has managed to continue the programs initiated under the previous administration. But, in order to do it, they have had to triple the staff.

Yes, there are nine persons either working or proposed to be working in the Federal grants department alone. Under the previous administration, there were three employees handling the same work.

Then, he has the temerity to tell us that because these highly paid employees are 100 percent federally funded, they are not placing a tax burden on the people.

Anyone who has filed a tax return this year knows where the money is coming from. There's no such thing as free money and the mayor should know it!

Finally, the matter of the CETA employees who were layed off in a pressure play against the council to force adoption of a water rate increase of 120 percent.

The truth of that matter is that Romulus is only entitled to 24 CETA employees and the mayor, thinking that he had found the pot of Federal gold, had employed 40. To reduce the enrollment, he chose the laborers as his target for lay-offs for two reasons, one, to alleviate his problems with the Teamsters union over CETA employee rights to be included in the bargaining unit and second, to bring his enrollment into line with Romulus' share of CETA funds.

The layoff was inevitable but not imperative for another month or so.

I maintain that the city administration is wasting our tax money. I believe that charges against the water and sewer department do not accurately reflect the work being performed by the individuals being charged against the department.

I believe that many highly paid employees have been added to the city payroll without council knowledge or approval; that money has been spent for services not authorized by the council, that the administration has not attempted to work positively and constructively with the council to solve our mutual problems in the city and that a recent mailing to the public glorifying the accomplishments of this administration is misleading and not an approved expenditure authorized by the council. Further, this expenditure is a waste of the peoples' money.

I further believe that the personal use of the city car by the mayor is a violation of the city charter and that he should reimburse the people for that luxury.

State needs tax guarantee

The people of Michigan, duped by Ex-Governor Romney and his gang into voting for state equalized valuation, gave state government a tool to steal as much as it wants, with no limit, from property owners.

All they have to do is say that your property is worth more today than it was yesterday, and then to increase your assessment to whatever amount they see fit.

It's odd that at a time when the country—and especially the State of Michigan—is in a recession, with the Mayor of Detroit and Governor Milliken running off to Washington to beg for aid for its impoverished people, that the Detroit Free Press headlined in its May 18th issue, "Land Values Jump 9.4 Percent—Property Tax To Rise 10 Percent."

Have the Governor and the Legislature no qualms about taking this 10 percent from its unemployed, and its other property owners already suffering from inflation and recession.

Quoting from the Free Press article, "The value of taxable property statewide has risen 9.4 percent in the past year. State Tax Commission Secretary Edward W. Kane said this is the largest increase since 1970."

Now if the above is true and the biggest increase is in a recession year, what is the property owner going to have to suffer when the economy improves?

Property owner beware—there is no limit written into the present law.

With inflation now an integral part of our economy, what will your property tax be next year?

Property owner, you have no doubt heard the old cliche, "It can't happen here." But what would happen if inflation got out of control, similar to the runaway inflation in Germany after World War I.

In 1924, it took three million Reichmarks to buy one kilo (2¼ lbs.) of black bread—and billions to buy property.

With state equalized valuation in effect, no property owner on a fixed income or pension could possibly pay the escalating property tax—and the state can, and will, confiscate your property for nonpayment of taxes.

Now the above example may be extreme, but it definitely demonstrates a need for a limit of valuation increase to be written into the present law.

Every property owner in this state is not a land speculator, and it is a sad situation when a person buys a home for whatever he can afford for his family to live in, and perhaps for him to die in, is then told that the $15,000 home he bought in 1940 is now worth $60,000—and he is taxed accordingly.

Never having any wish to sell the property, this is just a paper figure concocted by the state to steal this property owner blind.

The State of Michigan presently has a problem with industry leaving the state because of its method of taxation. Well, let it be known that home owners are also leaving the state for the same reason.

From 1963, the tax on my property has increased 440 percent, 285 percent since state equalized valuation was put into effect. At present, there is no limit on how much further state can increase the paper value on my home—or yours.

As I am presently retired and on a pension without an escalator clause on the cost-of-living increase, I do have the time and the desire to go to Lansing to fight for a limit to the amount of increased paper value that can be placed on an individual's property, but I do not have the funds to do the job alone.

I would like to hear from all property owners in the same situation, and possibly from home owner's groups or retirees clubs to form a lobbying effort in Lansing to get a "Right to Know Amendment" passed to the present law.

Such an amendment would place a limit on the amount state equalized value could increase while the property is in the possession of the same owner. Every home buyer should have a right to know how much the state equalized value can increase in his future, in order to plan his future.

As the inflation increases and property changes hands, the residence could be reevaluated at the time of sale by the actual price paid for the property for tax purposes, also giving the new owner the right to know how much the state equalized valuation can increase in his future.

From the State Senate

Faust's reform proposal

WILLIAM FAUST
State Senator, 13th District

The task you undertake today is probably one of the most important.... and difficult ones you shall encounter in your legislative careers. You are specifically charged with writing rules to govern the operation of the Michigan Senate. For far too long that unit of government has chugged along at a snail's pace, operating at times with gross inefficiency, seldom accountable to anyone, often productive, in the public's eye, only to individual member's whims.

I don't feel I have to cite here what is wrong with the Michigan Senate operation. As members of that body, you are keenly aware of the problems which confront it. You also are aware of the good it can do.

Several weeks ago, you selected me Majority Leader. One of my major goals in this position is to refine and to reform the rules governing the Senate...and thus renew the average citizen's trust in that body.

You have been selected because of your expressed desire to make the Senate a more responsive and responsible body. Many others in the Majority Caucus have asked to serve; you have been chosen to do the job. Since a majority of you opposed me for the leadership position, I hesitate to indicate that you were selected because of your good sense....but that is exactly why I have chosen you.

I hope, once you have organized as a committee and established your own procedures, that you will open your discussions and deliberations to every member of the Senate, including representatives of both political parties, and to the general public. It is imperative that you consider the views of every Senator who wishes to participate and every citizen who desires to be heard.

I caution you all, however, not to use this forum for any self-promotion....for any personal purposes or prejudices. Your actions here are being closely watched; so is your personal conduct. The committee should produce a document and set of rules that will endure far longer than our individual legislative careers.

Briefly, now, I'd like to share a few thoughts with you on general areas of concern.

By far and away your most important duty is to make the Senate a more accountable body to the public....we all know it desperately needs a new image. The people's business should be as open as the air. The government belongs to the people; the Senate belongs to the people, too. Records of its operation should not be hidden or obscured from public scrutiny in any manner.

YOU SHOULD WRITE A RULE which mandates that all individual expenses of the Senators, or the committees they serve, should be published periodically in the Senate Journal....in detail.

YOU SHOULD WRITE A RULE which specifically spells out under what conditions Senators may use mailing privileges....and prohibit by rule any mass mailings at least 60 days prior to any election.

YOU SHOULD WRITE A RULE which forbids payments of any travel expenses....by any Senator or any Senate employee....in or out of state....without an itemized receipt....and a report of what was learned on the trip.

YOU SHOULD WRITE A RULE which regulates the activities and expenses of any Senate Standing Committee or any special committee.

THE ENTIRE PROCEDURAL OPERATION of the Senate should be reviewed. Careful consideration should be given to the elimination and consolidation of the number of Standing Committees....there are too many. Today the general rule of thumb is that every time the majority party increases its numbers, a new chairmanship is created. Such a procedure only leads to foolish spending, inefficiency, and often the waste of valuable talent.

COMMITTEES SHOULD BE COMBINED, and perhaps enlarged, but in all cases the duties detailed. For example: the new Senate Finance Committee could be renamed Finance and Commerce. This committee could encompass such subjects as taxation, commerce, insurance, retirement, corporations, and economic development. Another committee could be Natural Resources and Energy. This committee could encompass such subjects as the environment, recreation, tourism, and conservation.

A NEW STANDING COMMITTEE could....and in my view should....be created to make the Joint Capital Outlay Committee, a Standing Committee. This would divorce this powerful sub-committee of the appropriations committee into a separate unit, allowing for a better building program for the state....and obviously allowing the appropriations committee to better study the expenditures of our general fund items.

I have many other thoughts in this area, but I shall present them in detail form at future meetings of this committee.

There is one last area I would like to touch briefly upon, however; this deals with the responsibilities and the authority of the Majority Leader. Today, there are no defined responsibilities for this office, and there are no rules which allow the office any authority. Yet, in the public's view, this office is responsible not only for the conduct of all Senate Business on an orderly basis, but the individual conduct of the members as well.

In my opinion, the office should be given some defined duties, some defined authority. I personally favor the same type of arrangement that presently is held by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

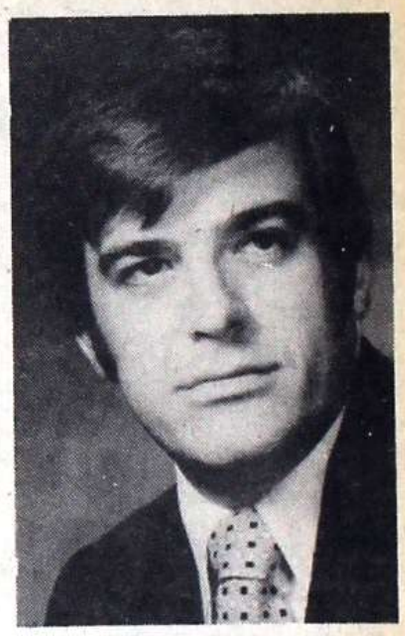
In any event, committee assignments should be entrusted to the leader or, at the very least, a special committee of three, composed of two members of the majority party, one of the minority....perhaps the Majority Leader and the Majority Floor Leader, and the Minority Leader. Further, seniority should not be the determining and sole factor in the committee assignment process. It should be utilized only in conjunction with a Senator's experience, interests, background, and education.

One final point....you should absolutely write a rule mandating a Senate Ethics Committee be established by statute. The personal conduct of Senate members should be beyond reproach; the integrity of the Senate should be maintained and honored by all its members.

Your work here is hampered somewhat by the fact you are exploring an untouched field. No Senate of any state in the union has the type of defined rule that I have outlined for you here. You have the opportunity to establish the most open, the most accountable, and the most responsible Senate of any Legislature in the United States. What you do here in the months ahead may well be your most significant contribition to the betterment of Michigan.

From the State House

New School millage formula needed



GARY OWEN
State Representative--22nd District

Our present 1976-77 state membership aid formula, as has been discussed in detail, provides each school district with an "equalization" guarantee of $43.90 per pupil on each of the first 20 mills levied and $39.60 on each of the next 8 mills.

Existing law contains a tentative 1977-78 formula, now endorsed and supported by Governor Milliken, which would increase these guarantee levels to $47 on the first 20 mills and $42.40 on the next 10.

Speaker of the House Bobby Crim has pointed out that, since most districts levy somewhere between 20 and 30 mills, the formula endorsed by the Governor would increase the importance of property taxes by widening the "revenue gap" between districts of different millage levels.

Speaker Crim wants to guarantee each district all that is promised by present law, while "holding the line" on the value of each mill. To do this, he proposes that the value of each mill levied remain at the same level of roughly $40 that exists today, but with a flat amount of $164 being added to the guarantee level for all districts. If we assume, for comparison purposes, that millage rates and tax bases behind each pupil are the same in 1977-78 as in 1976-77, this would produce the following results:

District

YPSILANTI
29.22 mills

WILLOW RUN
32.72 mills

LINCOLN CONSOLIDATED
30.92 mills

VAN BUREN
27.65 mills

Basic Revenue 1976-77	Existing Law 1977-78	Crim Proposal 1977-78
$1,232	$1,331	$1,333
$1,287	$1,393	$1,393
$1,315	$1,433	$1,433
$1,181	$1,264	$1,270

Obviously, Speaker Crim's alternative will cost more, about $13 million more statewide, with the added funding serving to decrease the existing state aid incentive for under-30-mill districts to increase property taxes and thus chiefly benefiting such districts in 1977-78. However, for the following year, the Speaker proposes that state funds be used to encourage over-30-mill districts to reduce their taxes, without loss of either revenue or revenue growth!

This would be done with the following formula:

Reimbursable mills over 30 — Authorized mills over 30 X "SEV" per pupil
$40,000

For example, Willow Run levies 2.72 mills over 30, and this brings in about $69.20 per pupil on an SEVpp of $25,449. Under the Speaker's plan, this would be reduced about 1 mill, to a 31.73 levy, and the district would receive an added $25.17 per pupil in state aid to make up the lost revenue. Combined with the $44.03 brought in by 1.73 mills locally, this would make up the same $69.20 for the district.

In Lincoln Consolidated, where the 0.92 mills levied over 30 brings in about $28.90 on an SEVpp of $31,430, the effect would be much slighter — about 0.2 mills reduction with no loss of revenue.

In either case, this obviously does not provide major property-tax "relief" which would require either a sizable increase in state taxes or a drastic reduction in school revenue. Instead, it seeks to lessen slightly the property-tax load in areas where it bears the heaviest, remove any incentive or need for further increases in such areas, then de-emphasize the importance of property taxes at all millage levels by "holding the line" on the guarantee-level value of each mill levied, while simultaneously, increasing a "flat grant" in the guarantee that is not dependent upon millage levels.

This means, as the local tax base behind each child increases, that the "state aid worth" of each mill levied would be steadily reduced, although the overall guarantee level would continue to increase at any given millage level, in exactly the same manner as if the value of each mill were being increased.

If school property taxes are to be held in check or even reduced in some instances, it is obvious that state funding in future years would have to be increased at a rate capable of enabling the districts to meet the inflation in the costs of education. With the Speaker's proposal, as with any school-finance proposal, considerations of equity and adequacy will continue to be inseparable.

ERA supported by League of Women Voters

To the Editor:

On the occasion of the League of Women Voters' 57th anniversary, we feel it is fitting to remind the nation that while we won the right to vote a half century ago, we are still struggling for equality in many other important area.

More than 57 years ago we were able to overcome insurmountable odds because we believed that failure was impossible. Today as we celebrate our anniversary, we call upon the public to rekindle this spirit of determination which gave women their franchise and helped build a nation.

The Congress of the United States along with 34 state legislatures has voted to ensure the legal rights of women in the Constitution through passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. This year's state legislatures have the opportunity to make the final decision to end two centuries of sex based discrimination in the law once and for all.

This nation was founded on the belief that given the opportunity citizens will offer their best to the country. We can renew this optimism in 1977 by passing the Equal Rights Amendment, for only through its passage can the full potential of all our citizens, men and women, ever be realized.

We urge Governors, state legislators and all those who feel as we do that much of this nation's potential has yet to be realized, to speak out on behalf of ERA and to assist supporters in the states that have yet to ratify.

This year we can and must set aside needless fears and pessimism which have permitted sex based discrimination to continue. We can and will ensure women the opportunity for full participation in American life and equal opportunity under the law.

Area meetings

—Registration for the Huron Athletic Club's baseball program will be held from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. March 5, 12 and 19 at Fire Hall No. 1, located on Huron River Drive in New Boston. The cost of the program is $6 per child or $10 per family. All boys between the ages of 7 and 16 years and all girls between the ages of 7 and 17 years can register for the program.

—There will be an organizational meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Van Buren Township Hall, 46425 Tyler Road, Van Buren Township, for the purpose of starting a Jaycee chapter strictly for township residents. Wayne Jaycees, under the direction of President Bob Beeny, have been contacting young men between 18 and 35 to see how many are interested in having a chapter in the township. Van Buren Township suffers from an "identity" problem, according to township officials, and they feel this will help them. Twenty-five members are needed to get a charter for a Van Buren Chapter and several meetings are planned to reach that number of young men before the new Jaycee year begins May 1. More information may be obtained by calling Beeny at 326-7779.

—An organizational meeting of the Romulus Area Blood Drive will be held at 11:30 a.m. March 9 at the Romulus Senior Citizens Drop-In Center, located at 36515 Bibbins. For state's anglers

Spring steelhead fishing should be best

Michigan anglers could well remember the spring of 1977 as the best steelhead season ever as a predicted record number of fish pour into Great Lakes tributaries, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Peak runs of mature, 3-year-old steelhead, averaging 10 pounds, and 4-pound skippers will make Lower Micigan spawning runs in March and April. Best Upper Peninsula stream fishing should be in April and May.

The more than 2 million fish available to anglers this spring equal previous runs, but the higher water levels expected in rivers mean record spawning runs.

Map by Michigan

Water levels of virtually all prime streams listed on the accompanying Auto Club map were extremely low last fall. This forced all but a few steelhead to winter in the Great Lakes rather than rivers.

Since much of Michigan received heavy snowfall this winter, the spring thaw should trigger heavy runs into all spawning streams, Auto Club said.

The state's 2-year-old steelhead record of 26 lbs. - 8 oz. set in Lake Michigan off St. Joseph could be broken this spring.

It may have been broken last year by anglers mistaking giant steelhead for salmon. A steelhead can be identified by its all-white mouth, spotted tail and pink gill plates and side stripes.

Anglers with probable record fish should take them to the nearest State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) office, or weight the fish using certified scales at any grocery and submit results to the DNR along with statements by two witnesses.

Since the start of heavy Michigan steelhead plantings in the 1960s, many angling techniques have been tried. Most popular has been the spawn bag, fished in river deep spots or along harbor breakwalls either with a sinker or bobber.

Wading rivers and working spinners or flies in deep spots or across occupied spawning beds are other productive methods. Some steelheaders prefer to troll wobbling lures or spinners off river mouths and in lakes formed by rivers in west Michigan.

Steelhead are fickle fish. Fish protecting beds during spawning or resting under logs or in deep holes often will charge flies or lures from several feet away. Other times, however, the same fish will ignore every attempt to provoke a strike.

Lower Michigan waters draw the most fishing pressure while Upper Peninsula streams often are deserted during major runs occurring a month after downstate fishing has ended. Southeast Michigan anglers have a bonus in the St. Clair River's North Channel, which has become an excellent steelhead fishery.

Auto Club reminds anglers to learn all regulations applying to rivers they will fish. Sections of some rivers are open for fly fishing only and other parts open when general trout season starts April 30.

DNR officials note that Lake Michigan steelhead may contain excessive amount of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs), and anglers should eat no more than a half pound of the fish per week. Women of childbearing age should not eat any fish containing high PCB levels.

For further information on stream limitations and PCB dangers, anglers should consult the DNR's 1977 Michigan Fishing Guide.

Commissioners increase capacity of new jail to 800

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has directed that the planned capacity of a new downtown detention facility be doubled to hold nearly 800 prisoners.

The board, acting at a Feb. 17 meeting, also allocated $360,000 for a Recorder's Court "crash" program and applied for up to $3.6 million in federal funds to fund the bulk of the program.

The crash program was instituted in an effort to reduce the number of defendants in jail while awaiting trial.

Based on the anticipated impact of the "crash" program, the Board of Commissioners also set a timetable for closing out three barracks being used to house excess jail prisoners at Detroit House of Correction (De HoCo). The timetable was recommended by the board's Public Safety and Judiciary Committee and anticipates a complete closeout by March 31.

One barrack will be closed when the total jail inmate population exclusive of females is 1,220 or less, the second when the county drops to 1,120 and the last when the population reaches 1,020.

The board appropriated $250,000 to fund use of the barracks and prisoner transfers through March 31. After that, all prisoners are exlected to be housed in the present 720-inmate downtown jail and the recently-opened detention facility on the grounds of the county hospital in Westland.

The board's decision to double the capacity of the planned new downtown detention center came after the Michigan Department of Corrections gave its clearance.

Last year voters approved a 5-year special property assessment of a half mill (50 cents per $1,000 equalized valuation), generating a total of $37 million to fund the facility.

The originally-planned 400-inmate structure was estimated to cost $22,334,000. The additional 384-inmate capacity will cost $9,723,000, keeping the cost within the millage revenue.

The expansion proposed originally by Commissioner Samuel A. Turner (D-Detroit). He and other proponents pointed to the per-cell savings to be realized, compared with later building another 400-cell structure.

Current plans call for continuing use of the present downtown jail also.

For 4th quarter of '76

Fuel tax revenues continue climb

State fuel tax revenues continue on the increase, climbing 6.3 percent in the fourth quarter of 1976 as compared to the same three months of 1975, according to the State Highway Commission.

However, because the 1977 license plate tabs are not as popular with motorists as the red-white-and-blue plates issued a year earlier, weight taxes collected in the October-December quarter fell by 19.2 percent.

Auto owners were slow to buy the new tabs when they were first issued last fall, but sales in the current quarter, ending March 31, are certain to make up the loss.

Revenue from gasoline, diesel fuel and liquid petroleum gas taxes in the October-through-December period totaled $106,165,555, an increase of $6,318,596 from the same quarter of 1975. License plate fees, based on vehicle weight, brought in $29,474,290, a drop of $7,002,420.

All motor fuel and weight taxes go to the State Motor Vehicle Highway Fund.

Combined fuel and weight taxes showed a decline for the quarter, but the net amount distributed to the state, counties and municipalities increased by $1,749,206, or 1.4 percent. The main reason for the increase was the distribution of interest earned by the Motor Vehicle Highway Fund during the quarter. Previously, interest was distributed only once a year.

Wayne County share of the quarterly payment was $6,661,715 as opposed to $6,677,998 in 1975 the time period.

Overture of warmer pursuits

March: Finale of state's snowbound fun

March in Michigan starts a slow fade into spring and events-wise, it's the finale of snow bound action and the overture for warmer weather pursuits, according to the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce.

Winding up winter on the slopes is the Pine Mountain Ski Jumping Classic March 5-6 on Pine Mountain near Iron Mountain. Top jumpers in the breathtaking sport will provide plenty of thrills as they sail off the end of the run for winning honors.

The competitive spirit will be at peak among the canine participants running in the Third Annual Cross-Country Sled Dog Run at the Winter Carnival in Newberry March 6-14. Sled dog racing is not only a popular and exciting winter sport in Michigan, but also a beautiful exhibition of mutual respect and affection between "musher" and team.

Motorized sled fans can take a last fling at skimming over the trails and through the woods at the Snowmobile Races on Beaver Island on March 13. The races are part of the annual St. Patricks Day Celebration, which also will include traditional Irish festivities and a bountiful home-cooked dinner.

Indoor events cover a wide variety of interests and just about everyone should find something to their liking. First up comes Sports Cars in Review March 5 through April 10 at Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn. The assemblage ranges from vintage models to more modern day examples of automotive design and ingenuity and will impress even non-car buffs.

Warm weather sportsmen and outdoor lovers will find much to whet their appetites at the "Outdoorama" Sports Show March 5-13 at Artillery Armory in Detroit. This spectacular show encompasses about every outdoor sports activity you can think of along with demonstrations and tips from experts.

Still in the sports vein, the NCAA Track Meet will be held March 11-12 in Cobo Arena in Detroit.

For "green thumbers", there is the Flower and Garden Show March 9-12 at County Center Building in Kalamazoo.

If the annual "fix-up, paint-up, decorate" bug has bitten you, a visit to the Builders Home, Furniture and Flower Show, Cobo Hall in Detroit might reward you with some spring fresh ideas for your home.

Arts, crafts and antiques have their days in March too with the Hobby Arts and Crafts Show March 11-13 and the Detroit Antique Show March 16-20, both at the East Eight Mile Armory in Detroit.

On the cultural side of things, the Shaw Theatre of Kalamazoo will present "Pagliacci and Rita" through Friday. The Kalamazoo Bach Festival presents C.P.E. Bach AUFERSTEHUNG UND HIMMELFAHRT JESU March 5 at Stetson Chapel on the campus of Kalamazoo College.

A concert by violinist Gil Margenstern is scheduled for March 10 on the Central Campus in Muskegon and the opera "Cost Fan Tutte" by Mozart will be on stage at the Lydia Mendelsohnn Theatre in Ann Arbor March 24-27. And, a show with a truly "all star" cast, "The Rites of Spring" will be at the Robert T. Longway Planetarium in Flint on March 18 - April 9.

High risk Swine Flu shots available

Innoculation for high risk persons in Western Wayne County against the Swine Flu have been resumed at two sites.

The shots will be given at the South Health Center, 21201 Eureka Road, west of I-75, from 4:30 to 8 p.m. Tuesdays and from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Fridays. The times for the second location, the Eloise Health Center on Merriman Road north of Michigan Avenue, will be 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and 4 to 8 p.m. Wednesdays.

High risk is defined as anyone 55 years of age and older, or anyone 6 months and older with a chronic disease. Bivalent also will be available to people who are most likely to be exposed to high-risk individuals.

People having fevers or allergies to eggs, chicken or featheers will not be vaccinated and should consult their family physician.

Private doctors, nursing homes and hospitals will have vaccine available for their patients.

Five deaths in a Florida nursing home by an outbreak of a Victoria Influenza prompted federal health officials recently to lift the ban which had been established late last December.

Florida nursing home patients who had not received the bivalent vaccine had a 41 percent rate of attack compared to 7 percent for those patients who had received their flu shot. Based on the information specific to the Florida influenza outbreak, the effectiveness of the vaccine has been 83 percent.

Results please Riegle

Michigan's freshman senator, Donald Riegle, has called a Senate committee's action on the Public Works Employment Act of 1977 a "compromise—but still a great success for Michigan and other high unemployment states."

In a mark-up session Feb. 23, the Environment and Public Works Committee overturned an amendment, originally offered by Sen. John Heinz of Pennsylvania, which would have drastically reduced the amont of money Michigan and seven other states would have received under the proposed $4 billion in public works funding.

A compromise amendment, with an alternative allocation formula, was adopted by a 9 to 3 committee vote. This formula was developed by the Economic Development Administration at the request of Sen. Riegle, Chiles, Ribicoff and Weicker.

Under the adopted formula, Michigan will receive $277.2 million — $70 million more than the Heinz amendment would have provided. However, the existing formula would have provided $311.5 million to the state.

"I would have preferred to see the existing formula remain in the bill, but I am very pleased that we were able to develop a formula that the committee would accept and I'll continue efforts to ensure that this compromise measure stays in the bill when it goes to the Senate floor," Riegle said.

He added that he is hopeful that the conference committee will decide to "further target public works money to Michigan and other high-unemployment states.

"Only by changing these kinds of formulas, will we be able to stop the dollar drain out of states like Michigan," he said.

Riegle initially wrote to all members of the committee urging action to prevent passage of the Heinz amendment. After it was approved, he then launched a drive to have it overturned during the mark-up session. He and his staff coordinated the efforts of all states which would be affected by the Heinz formula, and led the search for alternatives to be considered by the committee.

"We were able to convince the committee that public works money must be targetted to areas of greatest need — just as are our other countercyclical measures, such as the CETA program and countercyclical revenue sharing," Riegle added.

When figuring your taxes

Don't forget cost of operating automobile

Michigan motorists who itemize deductions on federal income tax returns may include many of the costs related to owning and operating an automobile, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

Copies of a pamphlet listing tax deductions for car owners, whether they use their automobiles for personal or business use, are available to AAA members at any Auto Club office.' The following deductions to which all car owners are entitled, even if their automobile is used solely for pleasure, are listed by the Auto Club:

—State gasoline taxes. In Michigan, it is 9 cents per gallon. (Divide the miles per gallon consumed by the car into the total miles driven in 1976 to determine the number of gallons used. For the amount deductible, multiply gallons used by 9 cents.)

—Interest paid on automobile loans and finance charges on revolving charge accounts used to purchase gasoline, oil or accessories.

—The 4 percent Michigan state sales tax on the amount paid for a new or used car, parts, accessories and supplies.

—Damage to, or loss of, an automobile due to fire, theft, collision, vandalism, storm, etc., not reimbursed by insurance or other means, if not due to willful negligence. (Deduction for damage to property used for personal purposes is limited to the amount of each loss in excess of $100.)

Persons itemizing deductions may claim as a charitable contribution any actual unreimbursed out-of-pocket expenses of operating an atutomobile in the course of services to a charitable organization.

The actual expenses of using an automobile to obtain medical or dental services may be claimed as a medical expense.

In lieu of itemizing actual costs, a standard rate of 7 cents per mile for such mileage, plus any parking fees or tolls, may be used in figuring deductions for charitable contributions and medical expenses.

Auto Club reminds motorists that the cost of license plates and driver licenses are not deductible items, unless the car is used for business purposes.

If a car is used for business, the following items (in whole or in part, depending upon the extent of business use) are deductible: Auto Club membership cost; state automobile license plate fees; driver license fees; automobile insurance premiums; car depreciation; judgement for damages due to negligent driving; gas, oil and libricating expenses (also winterizing and anti-freeze charges); loss on sale of automobile; cost of repairs, maintenance and accessories; washing and polishing expenses; garage rental, parking charges and toll road fees.

Instead of maintaining detailed records itemizing the costs of operation, a person who operates an automobile for business purposes may, under certain conditions, figure the cost of such operation by taking a standard mileage rate.

The standard mileage rate is 15 cents per mile for the first 15,000 miles of business driving and 10 cents per mile for additional business mileage. A log should be kept of mileage and parking and toll charges accumulated during business use.

Automobile expenses incurred in connection with business use should be computed on Internal Revenue Service Form 2106, which should be attached to the individual income tax return.

Auto Club points out that costs incurred in driving from home to a regular place of employment and returning home are not tax deductible.

School aid payments will resume

Michigan Gov. William Milliken late last week announced that $106 million in school aid payments, which initially had been delayed by the Department of Treasury, will be paid this week.

The Governor also has directed state officials to take steps to assure that all remaining state school aid payments this fiscal year will be made on schedule.

"After a review of the entire budget and cash flow situation, an improving economic climate will allow the state to meet the balance of the February commitments in a timely manner," the Governor said. "With the improved economic climate and the capability of the state to borrow additional funds, if necessary, I am fully committed to having local units of government receive the state aid payments in a timely manner."

GI students may end up owing feds

Veterans going to school under the GI Bill could wind up in debt to the federal government, if they drop courses or receive non-punitive grades under certain conditions.

A recent Congressional amendment to the GI Bill requires the agency retroactively to cancel assistance payment for a course dropped without a grade. This applies in cases when a course is completed, but the grade assigned is ignored by the school for graduation requirements.

The new regulation is a major change in the GI Bill benefit payments policy and does not apply when the situation was caused by circumstances beyond the student's control.

The new law provides that the Veterans Administration (VA) may not pay educational benefits for any part of a course which is not used in computing graduation requirements.

Many students will find themselves overpaid under the GI Bill for courses from which they withdraw and for courses in which the assigned grade is not used in computing the requirements for graduation. Payments for such a course must be stopped as of the first day of the school term, or Dec. 1, 1976, whichever date is later.

If a student withdraws from a course on April 1 under the conditions outlined, VA payments will be terminated retroactively to the beginning of the term. In the past, GI Bill payments would have been continued up to the date of withdrawal. The new law prohibits this.

Students enrolled under the GI Bill are urged not to drop a course or request a non-punitive grade until they have contacted their school's veterans affairs office. Students should fully understand what effect the withdrawal from a course or grade may have on their monthly VA checks.

The agency recommends both students and school officials provide a brief statement concerning circumstances of the withdrawal or grade assignment when reporting to the VA.

VA then will determine the effect of the circumstances on the withdrawal, or more punitive grade, and notify the student of the action taken to adjust his or her educational benefits.

County increases opportunity for smaller business firms

Wayne County has taken action to increase business opportunities for small and minority businesses.

The Board of Commissioners has approved a resolution calling for small and minority businesses to receive up to 35 percent of all county contracts for both procurement and construction business.

The commissioners also authorized Board Chairman John Barr to appoint a Citizens Advisory Committee of Small and Minority Businesses to work with the county's Board of Auditors in developing a new procurement program.

The resolution, introduced by Commissioner Samuel A. Turner (D-Detroit), chairman of the county's Ways and Means Committee, which approves all financial matters, was passed by the full board Feb. 17.

The board action requires the Board of Auditors to set aside certain county purchases from normal bidding procedures.

"We want to assure an equitable program of county procurement," Turner explained, "so that small and minority businesses will be encouraged to go after opportunities in the government spending area.

"The 1972 census listed 9,000 minority businesses in Michigan with 60 percent of those concentrated in the metropolitan Detroit area.

"We can talk about unemployment and our central cities being the hardest hit, but until we take positive steps to boost the employer in those areas, we're not going to have significant changes in the distressing job picture."

The resolution directs the Wayne County Corporation Counsel to prepare an ordinance on small and minority business procurement according to the following terms:

"Up to 35 percent of all county contracts for procurement and-or construction shall be set aside for small businesses and 15 percent for minority businesses."

Turner said if these businesses do not utilize 35 percent of those contracts, they would be let under normal bidding procedures.

"Many small businesses qualify as eligible vendors for federal, state and county business, but they are sometimes overwhelmed by what I would call the 'public spending mystique'," Turner added. "They simply don't know how to apply for government business and have felt that large firms probably would win the bid anyway."

Wayne County already has ongoing programs aimed at increased opportunities for small and minority businesses.

There presently is an Ad Hoc Committee on Increased County Business with Minority Contractors which attempts to seek out eligible firms. And the Wayne County Human Relations Department works to improve employment and business opportunities in this area.

The commissioners also have urged support for Senate Bill No. 10 which specifically authorizes and encourages counties and municipalities to adopt ordinances for set-aside programs.

Ford co-sponsors re-funding of 1976 Public Works Act

Legislation, co-sponsored by Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District) to refund the 1976 Public Works Employment Act was approved late last week by a vote of 295 to 85 in the House of Representatives.

The bill, a major component of President Carter's economic stimulus package, is the first section of the package to be approved by the House. A similar measure will be considered this week by the Senate.

Congressman Ford explained that the refunding bill will continue the public works job program, approved last year over President Ford's veto, which is already pumping $2 billion into the national economy. Work on many of the projects is about to begin, creating some 200,000 new jobs.

"We have now approved another $4 billion for this vital program," Congressman Ford said. "And we expect it to create an estimated 600,000 jobs."

More than 24,000 applications, totaling more than $20 billion, were filed under the 1976 legislation, but due to the limited funding, only 2,000 could be approved. Some 23,000 still are pending, including more than 70 in Congressman Ford's 15th District.

These applications will be given first priority for the new $4 billion.

Congressman Ford's district did exceptionally well in allocation of the first $2 billion. The 15th District had more project approvals than any other in the state, and ranked second in dollar totals, with more than $26,000,000.

"Many worthwhile projects were passed over, however, and I am hopeful that they will be funded in this second allocation," Congressman Ford said.

There's 'gold dust'

The Gold Dust Plant (Aucuba japonica variegata) is a tender shrub with stiff, dark green, waxy leaves spotted with bright yellow. The female plants bear red berries.

According to horticulturists at Michigan State University, the Gold Dust Plant is well suited to cool areas. It grows best in daytime temperatures no higher than 60 degrees and can stand temperatures as low as 40 degrees at night. It can tolerate higher temperatures, however, as long as the soil isn't allowed to dry out. Dry soil and high temperatures result in scorched leaves.

A good soil mix for this plant is equal parts sand, peat and loam or a 50-50 mixture of commercial potting soil and peat. Water throughly, the horticulturists advise, then let the soil surface dry before watering again.

Place the Gold Dust Plant where it will get some bright light and humidity of 40-50 percent.

Youngsters say 'hello' with hearts

Preschoolers in Romulus Senior High School's Child Care Program crossed Wayne Road recently to decorate McDonald's Restaurant with Valentines they made themselves.

Some 37 students, accompanied by teacher Phyllis Henry, 32 high school student helpers and security guard Arnold Zeigler, covered the walls of the hamburger haven with their festive decorations.

They were escorted by Zeigler, an officer of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, who led the parade with a "ceremonious air."

Mrs. Henry said the trip was quite an experience.

"After their obvious arrival into the building, Valentines were shyly, but proudly presented and displayed throughout the interior," she explained. "When this important task was completed and serious minds relaxed, appetites were realized and lunch was ordered. Each child was responsible for placing their own order and paying for their food."

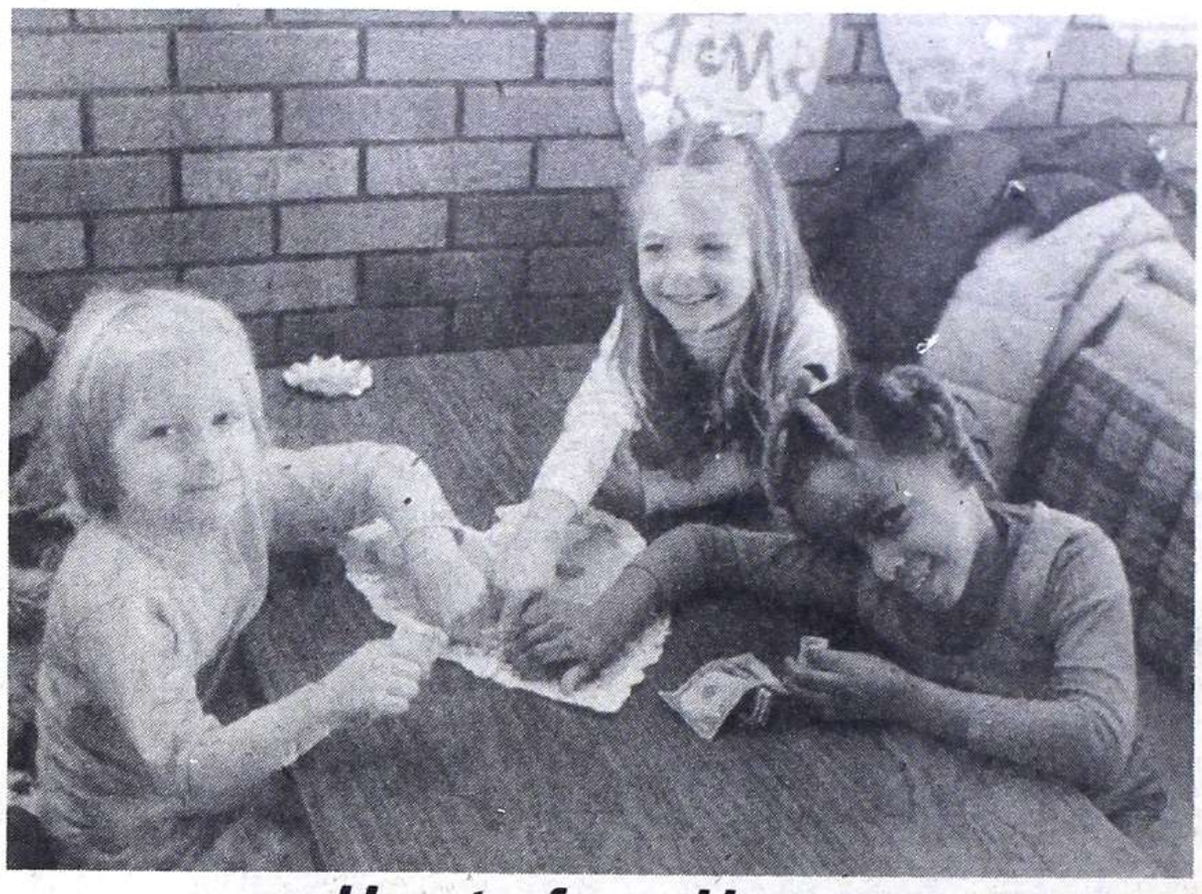
Much giggling was evident and nearby customers were taken up with the frivolity of the occasion," the teacher laughed.

One little tot was heard to exclaim, "What a great party!"

More excitement is yet to come, for McDonald's has promised to judge all the art work and decide on a first-, second- and third-place winner. The first-prize winner will receive a free dinner for the whole family.

Mrs. Henry said the high school students are working in the Child Care Program as a means of training them to work as aides for young children. On the trip, each high school student was responsible for one child.

"This Child Care Program gives the opportunity for the high school students to perform a worthwhile task and at the same time train for possible future work," Mrs. Henry said.



Heart of my Heart

What's cuter than three little 4-year-old girls giggling over their own valentine creations? Melissa Avery (from left), Charlene Clelland and Stephanie Kennedy, a trio of some 37 preschoolers in Romulus Senior High School's Child Care Program, smile at a pretty "heart" they helped create to decorate the walls of McDonald's Restaurant. The hamburger haven will reward the first-, second- and third-place winners.

Post Office seeks to end 'UAA' woes

The U.S. Postal Service has a $344 million headache, the "UAA", better known as undeliverable as addressed mail, and is seeking the public's help in ending its woe.

Last year, the nation's post offices received more than three billion pieces of mail that could not be delivered as addressed, with the cost of handing such mail estimated at the in excess of $300 million figure.

And much of the undeliverable mail could be delivered with the cooperation of mail users, according to Belleville Postmaster R.J. O'Neil.

Dor example, when you plan to move and know your new address, let your post office and those who send you mail — newspaper and magazine publishers — regularly, people you do business with, family members and friends, clubs, etc). know about your move.

"There's a free kit available at the post office to make this easy to do," Postmaster O'Neil said.

Given such information, the post office will forward first class mail to your new address for a full year without any additional charge. Publications will be forwarded for three months without charge to local addresses, and to another post office for three months, if forwarding postage is guaranteed. Parcels of obvious value will be forwarded for one year — locally without charge, and to another post office, if forwarding postage is guaranteed.

If you move and leave no forwarding address, the post office will hold your mail for 10 days to be claimed. Then it's considered undeliverable.

Other mail is considered undeliverable if it has no postage; if it's refused by the addressee at time of delivery, or returned unopened and marked "refused"; or if General Delivery mail is not picked up within 30 days.

What happens to UAA mail?

Postmaster O'Neil said undeliverable mail is returned to the sender, if there's an address. If there is no return address, the mail goes to a "dead letter" office where it is opened and an effort made to determine a deliverable address for either the sender or receiver.

When UAA mail is returned to the sender, a "hand" pointing to the return address is stamped on the envelope, along with the words "Return to Sender". Another stamp adds one of several possible reasons, such as "Moved, Left No Forwarding Address," "Addressee Unknown", "No Such Number", or "Not Deliverable as Addressed — Unable to Forward".

Other notations that may be written on the envelope by the letter carrier include "Deceased", "Refused", "Vacant", "No Mail Receptacle", and "Temporarily Away".

In addition to notifying the post office and correspondents of a change of address, these suggestions were offered by Postmaster O'Neil for "stamping out" undeliverable mail:

—Make the address legible and as complete as possible, including full name, street and apartment number (where applicable), city, state and ZIP code. When writing to a business organization, it helps to add the department name and room number to the address.

"If you have any doubts about a correct ZIP code, or have any other mail questions, call the post office at 697-8003 and we'll help you," O'Neil added.

Year-old dogs sought for blind

Want to send your dog to school?

Expecting another busy spring, Leader Dogs for the Blind is in need of 1-year-old German Shepherds and Labrador and golden retrievers.

Leader Dog, the largest producing school of its kind in the world, trains friendly dogs to be assigned to blind people, free of charge. The dogs are trained for three months prior to being assigned to the individual who will train the fourth month with their new leader.

The Rochester School depends upon contributions of eligible dogs — friendly, healthy and intelligent — for its training material. No dogs are purchased. Leader Dog maintains a constant training program, winter and summer, good weather and bad. It is necessary to have at least 150 dogs, preferrably more, on hand at all times.

The Leader Dogs School maintains a puppy program that produces approximately 40 percent of the training stock, so 60 percent of the dogs used must come from families who no longer have need for a big dog in the house.

Leader Dogs receive the best of care during their 4-month training period. Upon graduation a Leader Dog has total dedication, tender loving care, from the person who depends upon him for safe travel.

The contributor receives a photograph of the Leader Dog team, if the dog trains successfully. If the dog is rejected, it will be returned to the owner, if desired. If not, it will be placed in a good home.

For further information contact Leader Dog for the Blind by writing to 1039 S. Rochester Road, Rochester 48063.

Keep busy!
Have fun!

Nancy Dickerson, prominent national correspondent, reports for Detroit Edison:

"The lessons of two hard winters will help us all weather future emergencies."

Twice in less than a year, severe weather has caused interruptions and disruptions in electric service in Southeastern Michigan. It could happen again—with another ice storm, another spell of sub-normal temperatures or an extreme summer heat wave. It could also happen any time there isn't enough power to go around. We can't control the weather but Detroit Edison has developed programs and procedures to cope with nature's extremes and minimize the discomfort and inconvenience to its customers.

The worst ice storm in history.

March 1 marks the anniversary of the worst ice storm in Michigan's history. One out of every five families in Southeastern Michigan was affected directly by interrupted electric service. Damage to Detroit Edison equipment was disastrous and succeeding storms compounded repair problems. Over 1,000 poles and a million feet of wire had to be replaced. Nearly one-fifth of Detroit Edison's entire electric distribution system had to be restored or rebuilt. More than 5,000 Detroit Edison employees, contractors and crews from other utilities worked around the clock to get service back to normal.

Now a record-breaking cold spell.

This year on January 11 and again on January 17, severe cold and icing conditions put some of Detroit Edison's critical power plant equipment out of service. In past emergencies, Detroit Edison has been able to buy power from neighboring utilities. But during the coldest January on record, with accompanying high demands for electricity, there was little power to spare anywhere. Detroit Edison lowered voltage five percent and asked customers to reduce their use of electricity for two ten-hour periods. Additional load reductions were prevented through cooperation of our customers, efforts of our employees, and an effective interchange system with other utilities. Since then, Detroit Edison has been able to help other utilities that are still having problems by selling them emergency power.

Supply and demand.

If you're like most people, you're using a lot more electricity today than ten years ago. In fact, the average Detroit Edison residential customer now uses 41 percent more than in 1966. So far, this has caused no serious power interruptions in Detroit Edison service. But it could happen. Especially in sub-zero weather when everyone is trying to keep warm, or on hot summer days and nights when air conditioners are working overtime. To help balance power supply and demand, Detroit Edison developed remote-controlled water heating and is pioneering interruptible air conditioning and heat pump operation. More importantly, to assure our customers a continued supply of electricity, Detroit Edison is resuming its stalled power plant construction program. Work will be started immediately on two partially completed plants, the Greenwood I plant near Port Huron and on the Fermi II nuclear plant near Monroe.

You can help by using energy wisely.

During this January's power shortage, Detroit Edison customers helped reduce demand by more than 400,000 kilowatts by reducing their use of electric power. Detroit Edison would like to thank all of its customers. Their patience, understanding and cooperation during very difficult times helped prevent more severe hardships. Now, here are just a few things you can do during non-emergency times to help save energy and also save money: • Insulate your home with the help of Detroit Edison's Home Insulation Finance Plan • Put up storm windows and doors • Check weather-stripping and caulking • Dial down in winter and dial up in summer • Lower furnace fan settings • Keep electric appliances in good repair.

Prepared for power problems.

We could be in for more severe weather, but Detroit Edison is ready to put into effect tested disaster and emergency procedures which have been reviewed and approved by the Michigan Public Service Commission. The patience and cooperation that Detroit Edison customers have demonstrated in the past will also help relieve abnormal conditions. Our experiences have brought home the importance of America's crusade for conservation—and how it requires a working partnership between those who supply energy and those who use it. Together we can face the future with confidence.

Save energy for all it's worth. THE POWER IS IN YOUR HANDS.

Know the risks

Strokes can be avoided

Other signals include temporary dimness or loss of vision...

Stroke is not a disease that affects only the aged, nor is it a matter of fate.

It is caused, in many cases, by specific risk factors, which can be identified and reduced, according to Dr. Louise E. Rentz, president of the Michigan Heart Association (MHA).

"Stroke usually can be avoided," Dr. Rentz said. "However, prevention comes only by knowing risk factors and warning signals."

About 200,900 Americans will die of stroke this year. A total of 1,800,000 will be afflicted, many with crippling after-effects. Stroke occurs when oxygenated blood is blocked from reaching part of the brain, causing millions of brain cells to die. The result can be irreversible brain damage.

Many major strokes are preceded by "little strokes", or warning signals experienced days, weeks or months before the more severe event. Prompt medical or surgical attention to these symptoms may prevent a major stroke from occurring.

The primary signal of a stroke is a feeling of sudden, temporary weakness or numbness of face, arm and-or leg on one side of the body. Other signals include temporary dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye; unexplained dizziness and unsteadiness or sudden falls.

Many fatal strokes could have been prevented, if hypertension — high blood pressure — a leading cause of stroke, had been diagnosed and controlled.

"We know reduction of risk factors can help prevent stroke," Dr. Rentz continued. "Take high blood pressure, for example. It can be controlled. Data from lengthy studies on residents of Framingham, Mass., has supported the theory that early detection of high blood pressure, and its control, is the key to stroke prevention."

Although high blood pressure is the most significant risk factor in stroke, like heart attack there are other factors — high levels of cholesterol in the blood and excessive smoking are major factors, along with over-weight, lack of exercise, stress and a diet high in cholesterol and saturated fats.

"Because stroke has hit young men and women, even children, it is essential that blood pressure checks, proper diet and heart-healthy living begins at an early age," Dr. Rentz explained. "That's why the Michigan Heart Association stresses public and medical education on stroke prevention—particularly high blood pressure control."

The Michigan Heart Association also is helping those who already have had a stroke by organizing clubs for stoke patients and their families.

For more information about stroke or MHA's programs, write P. O. Box LV 160, 16310 W. 12 Mile Road, Southfield 48076, or call 557-9500, or your local Heart unit office.

Consumer-oriented panel studies health care costs

A unique, consumer-dominated committee is meeting regularly in Detroit in an effort to provide a balance between the cost, quality and availability of hospital care for Michigan residents.

In a joint announcement, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan and the Michigan Hospital Association (MHA) said the 13-member committee is charged with developing the system used by the Blues to reimburse hospitals for care provided to its more than 5 million members.

Harry Calcutt, an independent member and the recently-elected chairman of the committee, said: "Difficult as this work may be, it is a first-class example of the ability of private enterprise to grapple with a very complicated subject that is, nevertheless, absolutely vital to the interests of the people of Michigan. The cost of hospital care concerns everyone, without exception."

Eugene Feingold, Ph.D., chairman of the department of medical care organization of the University of Michigan School of Public Health; a member of the Blues' board, and spokesman for its five representatives on the committee, said: "This is an effort to involve different segments of the public in resolving health care cost issues. It recognizes that the public ultimately pays the bills and therefore must take part in important health care decisions."

John Freysinger, executive director of the Peoples Community Hospital Authority and spokesman for the 5-man MHA component of the committee said : "We hope to pioneer here in Michigan a new and reasonable solution to the problem of balancing the cost and quality of hospital care with the demands that the public places on its community hospitals."

The committee responsibility is to develop, review, evaluate and recommend changes in the current, cost-based reimbursement system. All recommendations require the approval of at least eight of the 13 committee members.

Recommended changes must be ratified by two-thirds of the 232 participating hospitals and by a majority of the 48-member, publicly-dominated Board of Directors of the Blues.

The committee, which is meeting bi-weekly, also has authority to decide hospital appeals on the interpretation of reimbursement policies.

Under a new participating hospital agreement drawn up in nearly a full year of negotations between the Blues and MHA, the 13-member committee is designed to include:

— Five persons appointed by the Blues' Board of Directors form the consumer segment of its corporate membership.

— Five persons, appointed by MHA, who are hospital administrators. They serve at the discretion of the MHA board of trustees.

— Three independent members selected from lists of nominees supplied by the State Bar of Michigan, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants or similar groups agreed to by the Blues and MHA. One appointment was made by the majority leader of the State Senate, another by the speaker of the Michigan House of Representatives and the third by the entire committee.

The three independent members are Calcutt; Angelo A. Agnello, a certified public accountant and executive vice-president of Kelly Services of Detroit, and Stewart A. Newblatt, an attorney of Newblatt and Grossman of Flint.

The Blues' committee members besides Feingold are Robert M. Cone director, Insurance and Pension Section of the General Motors Corp. of Detroit; Arthur Hughes, administrative assistant to the vice-president of the Chrysler Department of the United Auto Workers, Detroit; John W. Paynter, executive director of the McGregor Fund, Detroit, and Jack H. Shuler, vice-president and general counsel of the Michigan Bell Telephone Co., Detroit.

Representing MHA, in addition to Freysinger are John C. Bay, administrator of the Munson Medical Center, Traverse City; Gerson E. Cooper, administrator of the Zeiger Osteopathic Hospital, Detroit; John Morrow, vice-chariman and associate administrator of St. Mary's Hospital, Grand Rapids, and Kenneth E. Myers, director of William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak.

Coconut-Chocolate Swirl Coffee Cake

Two thirds cup flaked coconut
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
1 tablespoon sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 squares semi-sweet chocolate
2 tablespoons milk
2 cups biscuit mix
¾ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
2 tablespoons salad oil

Combine coconut, butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, and the cinnamon; set aside. Melt chocolate with 2 tablespoons milk in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly; cool. Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix, ¾ cup milk, sugar, egg, and salad oil; beat vigorously about 30 seconds. Add half the dough to the melted chocolate; blend well. Alternately spoon chocolate mixture and remaining dough into greased 8-inch square pan. Cut through batter with spatula or knife in zigzag pattern to marble. Evenly sprinkle reserved coconut mixture over batter. Bake at 400 degrees for about 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool; cut into squares. Makes about 9 servings.

Girl Scout cookie sale is overwhelming success

The 1977 Girl Scout Cookie Sale in this area surpassed its sales goal and achieved major increases in both profit and sales, it has been announced by the Huron Valley Council sale chairman Mrs. Jean Spence of Ann Arbor.

Total sales climbed over the goal of 350,000 boxes to 370,080, a 21.9 percent increase over last year's total of 303,516 boxes. Profits went up 24 percent to $273,859 from the 1976 figure of $211,566.

These profits, highest in local Council history, will provide $74,016 to Girl Scout troops for community service and other projects and $199,843 to the Council for the provision of services to troop leaders, and for camp development and campership aid.

Every section of the Council service area scored sales increases, led by Southern Wayne County and Monroe County with 43 percent; Plymouth-Northville with 35 percent and Livingston County with 33 percent. Sales in Wayne-Westland and in Ann Arbor went up 20 percent. Other area increases were Eastern Washtenaw County, 17 percent, and Western Washtenaw County, 6 percent.

"The sale seemed to move into high gear early and stay that way," Mrs. Spence commented. "Our 6,000 girls and over 300 men and women volunteers did a marvelous job in communicating to customers that the cookie sale is a great way to contribute to a good organization while getting something delicious to eat in return."

"Growing enrollment is one reason for the sale's success," Mrs. Spence stated, "as well as the introduction of a new cookie, the Peanut Butter Patty."

Success of the sale insures the construction of the pole barn rainy weather facility at Camp Linden in Livingston County and other planned capital improvements there and at Camp Hilltop in Ann Arbor and Camp Crawford, south of Ypsilanti, she said.

All cookies ordered will be delivered by the Girl Scouts from March 4 to March 15.

Washtenaw Community College schedules two March programs

A "Fashion Clinic" will be held on the main campus of Washtenaw Community College (WCC) on March 5. Carren Sandall, free lance fashion consultant, will conduct the program.

A discussion of current trends, assessorizing demonstrations, image consultation, information on diagnosing fashion problems, buying clothes in a resale shop and how to bring your old wardrobe up-to-date with today's fashions are just some of the areas that will be covered. The highlight of the day will be a special showing of spring fashions provided by Jacobson's of Ann Arbor.

The 1-day clinic will be held in the Learning Materials Center Building, room 2707, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. A lunch break has been scheduled from 12 to 1 p.m. (everyone on their own +sack lunch recommended.)

The fee for the clinic is $5 with senior citizens admitted free.

A class in "Creative Pattern Design" will be held at the Ypsilanti Center of Washtenaw Community College with Eunice Phillips instructing.

Seamstresses will be taught the basic techniques of flat-pattern designing; a method by which a simple pattern is changed or modified by specific directions to create a pattern for a chosen design.

The class will also help develop the ability to restyle out-of-date patterns, adapt commercial patterns to personal preference and make one's own patterns. Those attending should bring scissors, scotch tape and a small ruler to the first class.

The four sessions will be held at the Center, located at 214 N. Huron, on Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning March 1 from 1:15 to 3:15 p.m. The fee is $6 with senior citizens admitted free.

Advance registrations are requested for both programs and may be made by calling 482-2230.

TOURING OUR FUNERAL HOME CAN BE EDUCATIONAL

Would your religious, fraternal or civic group like to make a tour of our funeral home facilities? We believe your members would benefit through the discussions with us and each other. Many people have no knowledge of funeral costs or procedures prior to the time of need, so an education tour can be quite helpful to them.

Do you, for instance, know about funeral costs and procedures? Are you aware of the more-than-75 specific details to which we automatically attend? Have you wondered about the formal education and training which a licensed funeral director must have? Are you aware of the many informative books available now on "death and dying?"

A tour might satisfy your curiosity about these questions, and others. You'll see how we meet the needs of individual families with the professional expertise our community has come to expect.

If you or your group would be interested in a tour, please call for details.

At a party Feb. 6 given by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Burnie of Romulus celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Residents of the community for some 41 years, the Burnies reside at 7130 Hollywood Street.

Mrs. Burnie was Margaret Moore when she and her husband exchanged vows Feb. 5, 1927 in Sandwich, Ont. The couple's family tree now includes three daughters, Mrs. Frank (Dorothy) Trosky of Southgate; Mrs. George (Joyce) Deamud of Wyandotte, and Ms. Donna Thorpe of Romulus, and one son, Robert of Wayne. There are also 12 grandchildren to boast about.

For her special day, Mrs. Burnie donned a navy blue and green pantsuit to which she added on honorary corsage of red and salmon roses.

Guests arrived from Windsor and Merline, Ont., Royal Oak, South Lyon, Canton, Wyandotte, Wayne and Westland to congratulate the anniversary pair and to dance to the music of Stan Skyier. The party was held at the Bricklayers Hall in Southgate.

Mr. Burnie, retired since 1971, spends his spare time rebuilding bicycles and enjoying his affiliation with Wayne Lodge 112 F. & A.M. He had been employed at Nicholson Terminal and Dock in River Rouge from 1924 to 1971.

Girl Scout Recognition Day to include exhibits, demos

"Come, Join Us!" is the theme of the Girl Scout Recognition Day which is to be held March 5 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Wayne Metro Place Mall by troops in the Southern Wayne area.

Many exhibits, demonstrations, and various forms of entertainment will be offered.

Junior Scouts from Hale Creek School Troop 743 will present an array of items depicting what scouting is about, while Cadettes of Troop 450 from North Junior High School will feature a Girl Scout dictionary which will interpret the various special scout days and terms.

St. Anthony's Junior Scout Troop 278 will display various camping equipment. A fashion show of Girl Guide and Girl Scout uniforms from around the world will be exhibited with the use of cut-out dolls.

Brownies in Troop 174 at Hale Creek School will conduct a flag folding ceremony and trace the history of our nation's flag from the first used by Puritans after their arrival on the Mayflower.

Several junior merit badges will be shown by Haggerty School scouts from Troop 616. Demonstrations of skills will accompany their exhibit including loom weaving, toy making and camera use.

Needlecraft, including yarn stichery, and toy making will be demonstrated by students of Beverly School who are members of Troop 292, while candle making and cloth flowers will be shown by Junior Scouts from Troop 587 at Quirk School. Other similar displays are planned by Brownies in Troop 728 and scouts in junior troop 380.

Instructions will be given by Junior Troop 704 on the making of God's Eye. They plan to make gifts of their finished products to young spectators of the day.

Music and dancing will round out the day's offerings. One of the highlights will be a kitchen band assembled from Cadette Scout Troop 233 in Romulus Elementary School. The yesteryear-attired girls will present American folk songs to the accompaniment of their favorite kitchen utensils. Other troops offering singing and dancing are Brownies No. 33 and Juniors No. 704, also of Romulus Elementary, and Juniors No. 535 from Elwell School.

This activity is scheduled to coincide with U.S. Girl Scout Week, March 5 - 12, a nation-wide event to celebrate their 65th Birthday. The first Girl Scout troop meeting in the United States was held March 12, 1912, in Savannah, and led by Juliette Low.

Correct procedure

Brownies of Troop 174 of Hale Creek School will be among those involved in exhibits, demonstrations and various forms of entertainment at Girl Scout Recognition Day March 5. Jody Stoddard (left) and Alicia Brown practice the correct method of folding the American flag, one of the demonstrations planned for the program at Metro Place Mall in Wayne.

World Day of Prayer set

World Day of Prayer services have been scheduled for the afternoon of March 4 at St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Belleville. The community is inivited to participate in the 1 p.m. program.

The theme for this year's special day is "Love in Action" and stresses that each year Christians around the world unite to pray and worship God.

The women of East Germany have prepared the 1977 worship service, which stresses that Christians find that they are called to risk getting involved and that through the power of the Holy Spirit both the weak and strong come together to share life in love, not just in word, but in deed.

Each year as people of all different faiths come together, they find that they are all the family of God, are really all of the same faith and have need of each other. Joining together in prayer serves to further the feeling of unity.

Reflections

TV ads not scoring in our household

By LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Thus far (and I've waited with Scope-laced breath) none of my nine to midnight irritations have materialized in the countless commercials that sing, swing, dance and prance their way across my TV.

None of the niggly little annoyances I encounter are ever noticed by bellboys in hotel corridors, attendants in toll booths or waiters in restaurants.

And it's beginning to give me bad vibes. Just the thought of not being an average American makes me feel as if I walked on the flag.

To date not a single obnoxious character on the 25-incher has hissed "Put your money where your billfold is" or "Ring around the bathtub."

I happen to have developed a dumb habit of tucking minute sums of the green stuff away for this-or-that future purchase. I happen also to have a midget memory when it comes to the eventual treasure hunt.

And not only does no one in the family want attention called to the wedding band our tub is wearing but they make sure the shower curtain is drawn to insure privacy against prying eyes.

But let's get down to the gist of this article which had its birthday Saturday as I attempted (once again) to zip up my ski jacket. Holding side A in left hand and side B in right and slowly bringing together, I inserted point C into slot D, locking securely. Then grasping tab E in right hand and pulling upward . . .

Voila?? Bah!! Once, twice, thrice — that poor little ol' white stag on the Talon tab must have thought he was locking horns with one of his fiercest enemies.

I am still waiting to see a name skier such as Jean Claude Kiley or Franz Klammer frantically struggling to get his jacket closed. Then in a geyser of effervescent bubbles, some cute little animated character appears, not with blueprint for the zip-it-yourself fan, but to offer instant relief with plop-plop, fizz-fizz sound effects.

Heck! I was hoping for a solution to the zipper problem, not a remedy for white stag's nauseous condition.

Then there's that teeth-on-edge sensation as, making the bed, you smooth the spread under the pillows and, I-I-E-E!, find you have a saw-toothed fingernail — that same pinkie you've forgotten about when, 10 minutes later, you barb wire your last pair of ultra sheers.

How come Palmolive's wise-cracking ambassador never even mentions the serrated edges framing her customers' nails as she so flippantly passes judgment. Wouldn't you like to pretend that green stuff Madge has you soaking in will help put a satin finish on those claws?

As for those little men who sail around the TV toilet bowls, hide out in dishwashers so they can spit on your crystal and hold fruity reunions on the labels of jock shorts and T-shirts — where are they when I need just ONE mini-sized handiman?

I keep hoping he'll be camped out in the clothes washer, waiting to warn me I've overlooked a vagrant Kleenex again. But, no, he picks that very cycle to have a Mac attack and let's me discover for myself the giant-sized flakes of dandruff on all my dark clothes.

Another situation I'm waiting to see in those immaculate TV kitchens is one involving dear ol' mom trying to find the right sized pan for the cake batter she's prepared. Why is a standard 12-inch ruler one of my baking essentials and not hers? Why do I always have to rummage through a dozen pyrex, aluminum, ceramic and stainless stacks before I come up with a 9x12x3 to fit the kumquat cake or 11x14x1 for the sorghum roll? Why must I always pour measuring cups of water into various-sized casseroles and jello molds to determine if they're the 1-7/8 quart requirement or the 2-five-sevenths gallon capacity.

If they can put Libbeys, Libbeys, Libbeys on the label, label, label, why can't they mark the inches, square feet, tonnage on my pie plates, cake pans, springforms?

But, alas, I just discovered they HAVE done a commercial which hits home — the saga of my stockings. Why can I pick up an inexpensive heart-shaped carton of hose in the supermarket (just to wear hidden under slacks) and have them fit like a second skin? Then turn around and invest my week's allowance on a pair of filmy imports and have them look like massive sausage casings on two bean poles!

No doubt about it, folks, I can now identify with those 60-second spots the ad people keep firing at us. You've all heard the little kid who pointing the finger at a crestfallen, red-faced PTA worker, bellows "My mommy's the one in the baggy pantihose." Mommy could very well be me.

Now I'm waiting for the soap commercial toted as "ideal for washing out little (big) mouths!"

Colleges send news on students

Word concerning four area college students has arrived at our desk telling of their latest activities and academic standings.

From Oklahoma Christian College in Oklahoma City, Okla., a release informs us that Cynthia Palmer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Palmer of Belleville, has been cast in the College's spring dramatic production, "Pygmalion," by George Bernard Shaw.

Miss Palmer, a graduate of Belleville High School, and now a junior majoring in art, plays the starring role of Eliza Doolittle.

"Pygmalion," the play on which the musical, "My Fair Lady," is based is the story of a phonetician who takes a flower girl off the streets of London and after teaching her to speak properly and use correct manners, is able to pass her off as a lady of aristocracy.

Oklahoma Christian College is a 4-year liberal arts school now in its 27th year of operation. OCC offers degrees in 40 different areas of study and seven pre-professional programs.

Three Belleville students were among those recently named to the Dean's List at Madonna College in Livonia.

According to Sister M. Damascene, academic dean, Robert L. Barthlow Jr., Barbara A. Wilson and Michelle R. Ibach achieved academic excellence during the fall term.

Storage tips

Buy only enough bacon for one week. For peak aroma and flavor, use bacon within five to seven days after purchase. Store bacon in its original wrapper in the refrigerator.

Bacon slices separate easily if package is removed from refrigerator about five to ten minutes before using. Bacon may be frozen for short periods of time, but for best flavor, freezing is not recommended.

Restaurant Review

by Lee Smith, ANP's Roving Connoisseur

...Little Caesar's

If I had to sum up a visit to Ray Verrot's Little Caesar's Inn with one word, it would be "fun." Given a bit more vocabulary, I'd add "super food" AND fun.

It was easy to understand why Ray is so enthused and excited about his new business after joining other families at the popular eatery last Thursday night. It's a happy place.

The family restaurant, about midway between Belleville and Romulus, is easily accessible from I-94. Just take the Haggerty Road exit south and then make a right at the blinker light.

Stop in at 41111 East Huron River Drive — by all means, bring the kids — and have yourselves a good time munching the house specialty, pizza, or a multitude of other selections.

DO tuck in a pizza somewhere in your order or you'll be missing out on a real treat. Truly outstanding (no greasiness or burned edges) there are three types featured — original round, deep pan and gourmet square.

Trying the latter for the first time, we thoroughly enjoyed the soft, thick crust spread with ham and mushrooms, an excellent tomato sauce and creamy, stringy Mozzerella which never toughened.

And DO have an antipasto salad! I couldn't believe that what our waitress, Brenda, served me was the "small" size. It was huge! — an oval plate mounded with chunky lettuce almost hidden by strips of Italian meat, cheese and sliced black olives, all that wreathed by four kinds of hot peppers, tomato wedges and green olives and all bathed lightly in a vinegar-oil dressing.

For his entree, Bert chose veal parmegiana, the specialty on the dinner list. For $3.95 the two hearty steaks came with a generous side of spaghetti, salad, garlic bread and a basket of warm, fluffy Parkerhouse rolls.

A real fan of Italian cuisine, Carol ordered her favorite — lasagna — rich layers of wide noodles spread with meat sauce and Ricotta cheese.

All pasta meals, ranging from $2.45 to $3.85, are available after 3 p.m. only. All are complete with salad, garlic bread, rolls and butter.

American entrees include fish, shrimp, chicken, open-face steak sandwich, a variety of salads and a host of sandwiches for light eaters or the noon break crowd. Big Anthony, Big Cleo and Big Reuben are but three of the 16 luncheon favorites.

Spaghetti lovers — particularly those who can pack it away — should be lured by the all-you-can-eat special at $1.99. Available from 3 to 9 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday only, the meal features either meat sauce or meat and mushroom sauce, tossed salad and garlic bread. And for the younger set, 10 and under, it's a mere 99 cents excluding salad.

Wash it all down with an icey mug or pitcher of beer or a glass or carafe of wine. Your favorite cocktail can also be ordered.

If there's a youngster's birthday coming up in your family, make plans to celebrate it "you know where" with a special Little Caesar's pizza birthday cake and tall pitchers of red pop or other soft drinks. In addition there'll be freebies for the honoree and his guests — balloons, badges and pizza rings — to take home as mementoes.

Now that we've filled you in on the food, let's get to the fun part. Kids (all ages) agree there's nothing dull about Little Caesar's where, on a giant-sized screen, the dining audience can watch cartoons, oldtime movies or sports films. We shared our dinner with The Three Stooges, Mr. McGoo, the Detroit Lions and the Baltimore Colts. We were about to leave when some old friends, Pixie and Dixie, bowed in.

Afterwards we said good night to our very efficient and pretty waitress and our hosts — co-managers Bruce and Mark Verrott — who share duties with their dad and Jim Fielder.

Prior to remodeling and changing to the family type restaurant, Ray's business was known as The Blue Boar Inn. He's so pleased with the encouragement of his patrons and his own decision to change the status quo that he's now in the process of readying a Little Caesar's carryout spot near Romulus High School on Wayne Road.

Ray, who says he'd like to have a dozen restaurants just like his Belleville family inn, says he averages 1,600 pizzas per week. And yes, there definitely is carry-out service there.

Dining hours start at 11 a.m. and continue to midnight Monday through Thursday. On Friday they're 11 a.m. to 1:30 a.m.; Saturday 2:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. and Sunday 2:30 to 11 p.m.

We're just a bit early with our greetings but we'd like to wish the Verrots and their staff of 26 people an early happy birthday . . . . they'll be a year old come St. Patrick's Day. Perhaps on that day you'll find your pizza with an Irish touch. Shamrocks, anyone?

Through 'Ethni-City' guide

See the ethnic side of City of Detroit

Detroit has one of the largest and most varied selections of international restaurants, shops and activities anywhere in the world, according to a new publication just released by the Michigan Ethnic Heritage Studies Center.

Would you like to know more about the more than 800 stores and restaurants in the metropolitan area that specialize in Old World quality, or where to go to do interesting things like curling or to play bocci ball? Would you like to know where to go to research your family tree, or where to tune your radio to hear music from India, or Yugoslavia, or the West Indies?

Those questions and many more are answered in the new book on Detroit's ethnic groups, "Ethni-city: A Guide to Ethnic Detroit".

The 144-page book contains information of all facets of community activities for more than 60 groups. The most complete book of its kind ever printed for any city in America, more than 1,700 organizations are listed under some 50 categories of activity, with more than 800 ethnic businesses, 16 pages of authentic recipes, maps and statistics included.

Also featured are a number of articles, such as George Pierrot's "Detroit Is a World Adventure".

The first edition of this directory, published in 1973, was the first book of its kind in the country. Cleveland and Philadelphia have followed Detroit's lead and have produced their own community directories. This second edition represents more than a year of research and contains almost twice the information as the first edition.

This edition is a joint publication of the Michigan Ethnic Heritage Center and the Ethnic Studies Division of the Center for Urban Studies at Wayne State University. The International Institute also contributed to the research and more than 100 volunteers from more than 40 groups assisted in gathering and checking the information.

The Michigan Ethnic Heritage Studies Center is a multi-ethnic, community-based, non-profit organization dedicated to inter-ethnic cooperation and the understanding of ethnicity as a primary element in society and education.

Copies of "Ethni-city: A Guide to Ethnic Detroit" are available from the center or at bookstores throughout the area.

Double trouble

As the servant of two different masters, Truffaldino, played by Paul Prappas (center) receives double punishment for his mistakes from Beatrice, played by Devorah Eizikovic (left) and Florindo played by George C. Kappaz, in the lively 18th century comedy, "The Servant of Two Masters" by Carlo Goldoni. The play will be staged on weekends from March 11 through March 20 at the Bonstelle Theatre, the undergraduate theater of Wayne State University in Detroit. Performances will be at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays. For further information and reservations contact the theater box office at 577-2960.

Goldoni comedy will join WSU's Bonstelle playbill

"The Servant of Two Masters," the internationally known comedy by Carlo Goldoni, the "Italian Moliere," opens March 11 for a 2-weekend run at the Bonstelle Theatre. Performances are at 8:30 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays with two Sunday matinees at 2:30 p.m.

The story line of Goldoni's 18-century comic masterpiece follows the familiar pattern of mix-ups and misunderstandings and the hilarious situations which result.

Two lovers, Florindo Aretusi and Beatrice Rasponi, have been separated because Florindo killed her brother in a quarrel and was forced to leave town. Beatrice, disguised as her slain brother, travels to Venice, hoping to find and help Florindo. Along the way, she hires Truffaldino as her servant.

Meanwhile, Florindo also has come to Venice under a false name, and coincidentally, he too hires the quick-witted Truffaldino. So he becomes the servant of two masters, lodged in the same inn, looking for each other, but both traveling incognito.

The most frequently produced of Goldoni's plays, "The Servant of Two Masters" is based on the commedia dell'arte, or improvised comedy, which grew out of short scenarios, with the actors employing pantomime and tricks to achieve a comic effect.

Leading the cast of "The Servant of Two Masters" are Paul Prappas of Birmingham as Truffaldino, Devorah Eizikovic of Oak Park as Beatrice, George C. Kappaz of Grosse Pointe as Florindo, Hamid Dana of Detroit as Pantalone, Deborah J. Adler of Oak Park as Clarice, David Glenn Stern of Detroit as Dr. Lombardi, Timothy J. Holton of Birmingham as Silvio, Tony DiSante of Harper Woods as Brighella and Deborah A. Pietruska of Detroit as Smeraldina.

Robert T. Hazzard directed the production, with set design by Elizabeth Anne Roush, costume design by Susan Lambeth, and lighting by Blair Vaughn Anderson.

For ticket information call 577-2960.

Song, dance revue highlights exhibit of antique autos

A rollicking "Remember the 50s?" song and dance revue, a premiere exhibit of antique toy cars, and a colorful film on the history of the Sebring races will be among the attractions at Henry Ford Museum's 25th annual Sports Cars in Review Friday through April 10.

Show stars will be the automotive treasures selected by the museum to represent the best from past Reviews.

By borrowing poised and pamered jewels from many of the nation's outstanding private antique car collections, the museum will present an array of automobiles that will delight anyone who has ever enjoyed looking at an automobile. Indeed, who isn't attracted to a svelte Auburn Speedster, a delicate Bugatti, or a purposeful Simplex Speedcar. These glittering giants from the flamorous past will stand wheel-to-wheel with the MG, Austin Healey, Jaguar, Morgan, Triumph and other marques that popularized sports cars in America.

Presented by the Greenfield Village Players in the Museum Theater Friday evenings, Saturday afternoons and evenings and Sunday afternoons except March 11, and April 2, 8 and 9, "Remember the 50s?" will feature lively renditions of "Steam Heat", "Tutti Fruitti", "Hey There", "Can Can" and many more hits.

Also in the theater, showgoers will see their favorite sports cars in action in a dramatic and sometimes humorous film on the history of Sebring.

The collection of 100 toy cars owned by American Motors Vice-President Richard Teague will captivate the young at heart of all ages.

The museum will have special hours throughout "Sports Cars In Review" — 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursdays, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays. The museum's Heritage Hall dining room will remain open until 7:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

There is no additional charge for Sports Cars In Review beyond the regular museum admission.

PBS broadcasts first live telecast of Metropolitan

Television has often been described as the vast wasteland, but one local broadcasting network is celebrating Festival '77, its annual awareness and fund-raising campaign in a cultural and entertaining way.

Channel 56, WTVS-Detroit, a part of the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS), will be offering viewers in the metropolitan Detroit area the first live telecast from the New York Metropolitan Opera House as part of Festival '77.

The Met will appear live in its first television performance ever on March 15. The historic occasion, a broadcast of Puccini's "La Boheme", will start at 8 p.m., offering viewers three hours of the finest opera from Lincoln Center in New York City.

Arrangements for the broadcast, to be carried on all PBS stations nationwide, was coordinated by Hartford N. Gunn Jr., vice-chairman of the service. It represents "the fulfillment of a 6-year effort", according to Gunn.

Opera officials also are pleased with the arrangements. Met Executive Director Anthony A. Bliss said: "With our box office presently doing almost 95 percent capacity, we are simply unable to accommodate the millions of opera lovers who might wish to see a live performance at the Metropolitan."

Intermissions also will be broadcast live from Lincoln Center.

"La Boheme" is Puccini's masterpiece of youth, love and death in a Bohemian artist community of the 1830s. In it, a young poet named Rodolfo falls in love with Mimi, a poor seamstress. Jealousy clouds their romance until the final act, where they are reunited only to be parted forever by Mimi's tragic death. A subplot between a painter, named Marcello, and his former sweetheart, Musetta, weaves through the opera.

Principal roles will be sung by soprano Renata Scotto as Mimi, soprano Maralin Niska as Musetta, tenor Luciano Pavarotti as Rodolfo and baritone Ingvar Wixell as Marcello.

Photos-by-wire ease trauma of moving here and there

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

Moving — be it across town or outstate, because of a job transfer, retirement or a search for new opportunities — can be difficult for a family.

However, one real estate firm is helping to ease the trauma of relocation through a computerized hookup that can put a buyer in touch with a broker wherever he plans to move to.

With two years of experience of handling ERA (Electronic Realty Associates Inc.), Ronald Patterson of Metro West Inc. of Garden City is convinced the system is the best way to move.

According to Patterson, homeowners, considering moves—whether within or outside the state—"can shop for homes on the market" in a specific price range "to see what they can afford before incurring the expense of a trip there."

Patterson added that ERA "can ease the uncertainty of whether the move is financially wise or unwise".

Based in Kansas, ERA provides a telephone computer system to participating brokers throughout the United States and in a matter of minutes can transmit a series of photos and pertinent information, needed by the buyer.

Patterson said by use of the telephone hookup, a broker is able to send out referrals—"carefully thought out by the people and authorized"—to the central office in Shawnee Mission, Kan., allowing a receiving broker to have an exact copy of the information, cutting down on the time element and eliminating the chance of error. According to Patterson, through era" within 20 minutes I could have another broker call from California".

Those brokers involved in the ERA network are recommended for positions by fellow ERA members and are experts in meeting the specific needs of each family, down to the types of schools and transportation available in the new community.

Patterson added that in some instances families have purchased homes at the other end of the country literally "sight unseen" through the ERA program.

Not geared to having brokers "on every corner", its members handle large areas.

The telephone transmitting system is so suited for the national multi-listing that, according to Patterson, at times the scanner has been used to transmit work letters, mortgage papers and other necessary paperwork of a transaction.

"It's customized marketing of every home listed," Patterson said. "That's why we have such a high multi-listing sales average." Since joining ERA two years ago, Patterson said Metro West has converted a 37 percent sales average to a 67 percent mark.

Started in 1972, ERA has been described as a photo-by-wire listing with 2,000 offices nationwide, 28 of which are located through the State of Michigan. The only computer controlled system in the United States it came into existence because of "a lack of a full range of services" for buyers and sellers alike.

Adding to the effectiveness of ERA is two warranties, that protect not only the buyer, but also the seller.

Revolutionary in the real estate business, the Home Sellers Protection provides coverage of major home components, including the central heating, air conditioning, plumbing and electrical systems, wall, floor and heating units, built-in appliances, water heaters and softeners and sheet metal ducts before the owner sells his home.

The coverage begins 15 days after the house is listed for sale through an ERA member broker and is good for up to six months.

Augmenting that coverage is the Buyers Protection Plan. Like the seller's plan, ERA pays for repair work after a deductible is paid by the homeowner per service call. At the time of sale, the home seller's warranty transfers to the buyer and remains in effect for one year.

Under the warranty the seller's equity is protected, according to Patterson, and appraisers view the program as adding $500 to the value of the property.

Patterson went on to say that homes sell faster — 14 percent less time — and sellers net 2 to 3 percent more for their homes.

To qualify for the protection plan, a home must be listed from 90 to 180 days, be occupied by the owner and be listed within a 10 percent range of comparable homes.

"Now we can protect the buyer and seller," Patterson added. "We can make the move easier, sell the house quicker and the seller can get what he wants for the house because of the warranty.

'Creative imagination' has meaning for handicapped

(Bill Kiser of Winston-Salem, N.C. has been named Handicapped American of the Year. The author of a weekly syndicated newspaper column, he offers this piece through the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.)

People who have physical impairments which cannot be corrected with present medical techniques can well appreciate Einstein's statement: "Imagination is more important than knowledge". From my own long struggle to cope with the multiple problems of cerebral palsy, I know that my progress can be measured in terms of "creative imagination".

My introduction to creative imagination" came from a carpenter who solved a problem that my parents had been unable to solve. Since I didn't learn to walk within the "normal" range, my parents encouraged me to continue using my baby walker. As I grew bigger and taller, it became unsuitable. This carpenter had the idea of putting longer legs on the walker, and it soon became an annual task to get the legs lengthened. This was the first of hundreds of ideas that I have used to circumvent my physical limitations.

As I grew older, and decided to live alone, I was faced with problems which required the full extent of my imagination (and that of other people) to overcome. Difficulty in getting my wallet out of my pocket ended when a friend suggested attaching a leather case to my wheelchair. An occupational therapist enabled me to wind my clock by attaching a device which did not required precise finger control.

I have to admit that the majority of the ideas have not worked. However, I take comfort in the knowledge that among people who create new ways to do things, if one idea in 10 works, they're considered successful. It's a record I aim for.

Innovative ideas have, and always will have, a positive and stimulating effect on my life and the lives of other disabled people. Even small changes can help to make life much easier, and handicapped people must sharpen their problem solving abilities. It seems to me that one of the vital roles a disabled consumer group can play is that of pooling creative solutions to common problems that handicapped people experience. It's stupid for any handicapped person to spend years trying to find solutions to problems without taking advantage of the experience and creativity of others.

We must look to the example of large firms which use creative problem solving, "brainstorming," and other techniques that generate ideas to improve their operations and products. These companies have to be creative, and I've found that it pays off for me too.

I made a deliberate effort to follow modern creative problem solving techniques when my roommate moved. A friend, who was deeply involved in using creative techniques, and I came up with three alternatives: (1) another roommate; (2) employing a housekeeper; and (3) employing someone to come in each morning to give me the necessary help. Then we put down on paper the positive and negative aspects of each plan. After deliberating the pros and cons, I decided on the third alternative. It was one of my wisest decisions, and it sold me completely on thinking creatively in areas that affect my daily life.

My future, and that of other disabled people, may not depend as much on great scientific discoveries as it does on the imaginative powers that men possess. We must develop these powers within ourselves as well as utilizing imaginative solutions of others.

For me, at least, the whole concept of rehabilitation is based on creative imagination. We sell ourselves short when we fail to develop — and use — it.

Gardens popular with senior citizens

By MAUREEN BEATTY

Gardens for seniors has been a popular program since 1975. With the help of then Commissioner Tom Taylor, now the mayor of Westland, a 7-acre tract near Michigan Avenue and Merriman Road was set aside for gardening. Each senior is alloted a 50- by 50-foot plot on which they can grow the vegetables of their choice.

The garden plots, plowing and water are provided free by the county. Seeds, this year as in the past, will be donated by Frank's Nursery Sales Inc. Seniors need only provide their own tools and fertilizer.

The garden plots are available each year as soon as weather permits, usually running May through September. Many of our gardeners tend their plots in the morning and join us for lunch at J Building at 12 p.m. Last fall the gals working in J Building were treated to some delicious corn, tomatoes and cucumbers by a few of our generous gardeners. The harvest of each plot is the seniors to do with as they wish. I know many wives were busy canning when the vegetables were ready. One gardener told us he and his wife are just now running low on vegetables she canned last fall.

Seniors who have had plots in the past are given first chance for the new season. When plots become available new gardeners are chosen from a reservation list. The program is so successful that all plots for this year already have been assigned.

Anyone wishing to make reservations for plots as they become available or for more information contact Joan Didia, project coordinaotr, at 326-9400.

New law covers operation of motorized bikes—mopeds

With spring just around the corner, many Western Wayne County residents are blowing the dust off of bicycles and tuning up their motorized 2-wheelers, or mopeds, for another summer of outdoor riding.

But those residents owning the later vehicles should know of a recent law, signed by Gov. William Milliken, amending the definition and operating regulations for mopeds.

The new law, Public Act No. 439, is effective immediately and defines a moped as a 2- or 3-wheeled vehicle with operable pedals and which is equipped with a motor that does not exceed 50 cc piston displacement, produces 1.5 brake horsepower or less and cannot propel the vehicle at a speed greater than 25 miles per hour on a level surface.

The operator must have a valid driver's license or a special restricted moped license, which is obtainable at a minimum age of 15 years. The special license fee is $7.50 for a 4-year period. Registration of motorized bicycles is by decal, costs $2 per year and will begin May 1.

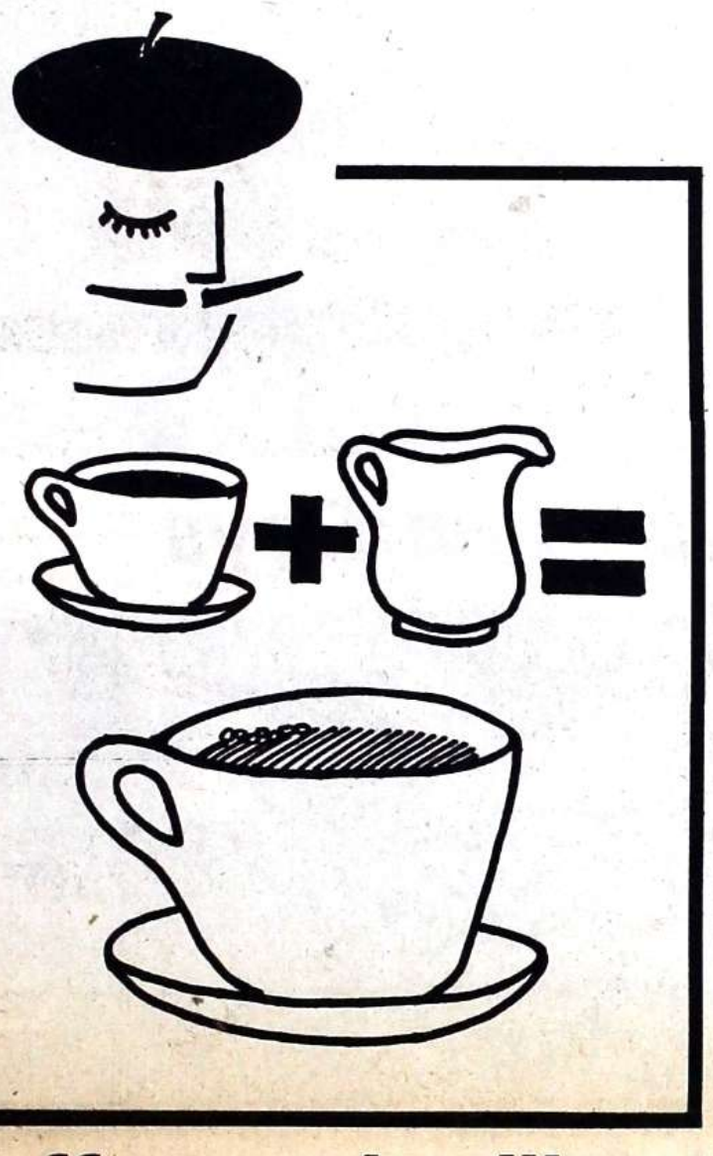
Operation is allowed on all roads except limited access highways. Operators must obey all traffic laws and regulations, and motorized bicycles may not be operated upon sidewalks.

Paul Zimmerman, executive director of the Motorized Bicycle Association, a non-profit organization whose members are manufacturers, importers, distributors and dealers of motorized bicycles said: "The motorized bicycle, or moped as it is known in Europe, has long been an important form of short haul, low speed utility transportation in other parts of the world. Its simple bicycle-like operation — it has pedals, hand brakes, and automatic transmission — coupled with its low operating cost — 120-200 miles per gallon of fuel — will make the motorized bicycle a practical vehicle for the people of Michigan."

Michigan is one of 23 states that have specific legislation defining and governing the operation of the motorized bicycle. Other states are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas, Ohio, Nevada, California, Hawaii, New Jersey, Kansas, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Maryland, Connecticut, Arizona, Iowa, Florida, Pennsylvania, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New York and Indiana.

Zimmerman said: "In Europe, where 15 million motorized bicycles currently are in use, they are an important part of the transportation system. A similar trend now can be seen in the United States, where the rising cost of transportation, gasoline prices, urban congestion, pollution and parking problems have produced an increased interest in the motorized bicycle.

"By enacting a specific motorized bicycle law, Michigan has demonstrated to the nation its progressiveness in the transportation field."



Coffee and milk: It stretches brew

Whether you call it cafe au lait, kaffee mit schlag or just plain coffee with milk, it's coffee that's been stretched with milk or cream, according to the United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA).

With coffee prices beckning somewhat astronomically these days, many people are looking for ways to extend their favorite beverage and give it a new flavor dimension as well. That includes not only Americans, but also Scandinavians, Belgians, Italians and South Americans.

Even if you're making only half a pot of the dark brown brew, it can go as far as the full pot of yesterday, if you add an equal amount of milk or cream. For black coffee consumers, this may mean a habit change, but there's a nutritional bonus, if milk and-or cream are added: calcium, phosphorus, protein and riboflavin, to mention but a few of the nutrients.

Extending coffee with milk or cream started several centuries ago, as a matter of fact, with the Viennese leading the way. In 1683, the Viennese routed their Turkish invaders who left behind some 529,000 tents of provisions, including, you guessed it, coffee. They didn't know what to do with the beans, so one of the things they tried was burning it for fuel. It smelled so good that they decided to mix it with water, strain it and serve it mixed with a favorite beverage of their own: milk and honey.

With the Viennese penchant for whipping cream (schlag), it wasn't too long before coffee with a fluff of cream became a favorite.

While the Viennese drink their coffee mainly from noon through midnight, the French start their day with cafe au lait. It's their breakfast beverage that has the status of an institution.

To make cafe au lait properly, rich milk is heated, and during the process, beaten until foamy. Both hot milk and coffee are poured into the cup simulataneously.

South Americans also like cafe au lait, except that they may use a coffee-like beverage, called matte but with a lot of milk, as do the French.

There are many beverages that compete for stomach space. Any one of several can be used to extend the coffee, suggested UDIA. Southerners already extend theirs with chicory. Mexicans like a combination of sweet chocolate or cocoa with a bit of coffee flavor and a dash of cinnamon. And, of course, Irish coffee with its cream and whiskey is as famous as the Irish themselves.

Scandinavian mothers sometimes wean their children with a beverage made mostly of milk with just a spoonful or two of coffee. This is very similar to what we know as Boston coffee which has so much cream in it that people refer to it as "white coffee".

When it comes to coffee for warm weather, ice cream is a popular ingredient with coffee. It's made even more interesting with ice cream plus flavor like apricot liqueur, brandy, cream de cacao, etc.

So, no matter what kind of coffee you use — from beans to powered or freeze-dried, extended with chicory or even fig seeds — be sure to use milk with it. That adds flavor, increases the amount of coffee you may have for a break and cuts costs, emphasized the United Dairy Industry Association.

It's a Gas

It might have been a major catastrophe.

On the way over to Sen. Riegle's (D. - Mi) open house in Allen Park last Friday, Romulus' Public Information Officer Jay Young, filled up the gas tank at a self-serve gas station.

Unfortunately, the gas remaining in the nozzel spilled all over his coat and hands.

Unable to wash before meeting Michigan's newly-elected Senator, Young unintentionally distributed the gas and fumes to the Senator after shaking hands with him.

That could have been dangerous, considering the number of people smoking in the room.

Fortunately, the Senator and his assembled guests escaped any harm, to the relief of Young and all those present.

Another Secret Public Meeting

The Canton Township board had another Secret Meeting last Friday morning at the Township Hall.

The topic was growth control, and an attorney from The Detroit Law school was brought in to discuss the legalities of growth control in Canton.

When will these secret meetings end— hopefully by April 1st when the Open Meetings Act is effective!!!

A Long Shot with New Coats

It was reported that The Westland Fire Department took delivery of their new firefighting equipment including new boots, gloves and coats.

The first thing our firefighters noticed was the large tag hanging on the front of their new coats.

"Do not expose to heat or light, store in a cool dark place," it read.

We suggest that the fire department should now buy an additional accessory for those new coats, a new long-long-long fire hose.

No Point in "Point of Order"

It was reported that at a recent meeting of the Westland Zoning Board of Appeals, a citizen was denied his right to be heard.

Mr. Lou Beaver of Marie St., Westland, appeared at the meeting to express his concerns regarding a proposed development and expansion of a business located near his home.

Mr. Beaver and eight other residents of the area were allowed to speak only once at the meeting, and at one point, when it appeared that Chairman Charles Griffen of the ZBA, was going to ask for a motion, Mr. Beaver jumped up and asked for a point of order. Mr. Griffen replied that Mr. Beaver had no rights at that meeting (probably in reference to his point of order comment).

We would remind Mr. Griffen that his function as Chairman of the Board is to assure everyone of their right to be heard, and not attempt to use Robert's Rules of Order to limit citizen participation.

3rd cage title in 5 years

Glenn climbs to 1st in one year

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

When the chips were down, John Glenn's cagers came through.

Coach Gordie Davis' Rockets needed their last two league games in order to win the Northwest Suburban Conference basketball championship and the Westlanders did it, downing Garden City East 71-41 to finish 6-2 on the league season.

Glenn and North Farmington wound up as co-champs. It was Glenn's third championship in the last five years.

"We did a complete turn-around from a year ago," Davis said. "A year ago we finished at the bottom, now we're at the top. And I'm really pleased. The kids worked all season for this championship and had to win the last two league games to take it."

Glenn put the game out of reach early as Doug McCarty, who only recently broke into the Rockets' starting line-up, drilled in 11 points in the first period to stake his team to an 18-12 lead.

Dan Diadiun, Tom Jurewicz and Pat McBride picked up the slack from there and the Westlanders raced to a 37-22 halftime advantage and the outcome was never in doubt after the half.

"I feel we played one of our better games," Davis pointed out. "It was just one heck of a team effort."

McCarty finished the game with 23 points, a career high. Diadiun contributed 12, while McBride and Jurewicz accounted for 11 and 10 points respectively.

However, the Westlanders got off to a cold start in their season's finale at home against Bloomfield Hills Lahser and dropped a 63-48 nonleague decision.

Glenn hit only three of its 16 shots from the field and that led to a 13-6 first period deficit. The hosts trailed 29-21 at the half and, after each team scored nine points in the third period, Lahser attempted to "sit on its lead" with a fourth period stall.

Forced to foul to get possession of the ball, Glenn's tactics failed as Lahser capitalized on 17-of-20 at the free throw line in the last period to seal the victory. The visitors shot 21 of 28 at the line for the evening.

Diadiun kept the Rockets alive with 20 points but got little support for his teammates.

Lahser's Jamie Drew had 18 points, high for the visitors.

Cherry Hill has its first Tri-River cage title

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

"We're really elated and I'm proud of and for these kids."

That's the way Cherry Hill Coach Dick McNally summed up his feelings after the Spartans trampled Southgate Schafer 87-64 Friday night.

The Cherry Hill victory coupled by Riverside's upset 60-49 triumph over Crestwood provided the Spartans with their first Tri-River Conference basketball championship.

"We've come close before" McNally continued. "We finished second behind Garden City West a couple of times but we never were able to win it.

"Needless to say, I'm elated."

Cherry Hill finished the league season with a 12-2 won-lost record, one victory more than Crestwood which went into Friday night's confrontation with its city rival sharing the lead.

Cherry Hill wasted little time with Schafer. The Spartans, behind their usual balanced scoring attack, raced to a 14-11 first period lead and widened the gap to 44-28 at halftime before going on to outscore their rivals 26-17 in the third period.

McNally had ample opportunity to use all of his players.

Four Cherry Hill players reached double figures with Keith Stewart's 24 points standing up as the game's high. He hit on 12 field goals. Teammate Jim Steudle sacked 22 points, while sophomore center Floyd Simmons added 19 and Dennis Gunn sank 12.

Schafer, the pre-season title favorite, received 18 points from Gary LaPorte whle Bob Casanova, the team's leading scorer counted 12.

"You know I have been coaching basketball for 16 years now," McNally related, "but this is the first time in my coaching career that

Recruiting report

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

In the midst of "March Madness" one usually doesn't hear from football people, especially Lloyd Carr.

But Carr, the former Westland John Glenn football coach who is presently an assistant grid coach at Eastern Michigan University, broke the high school basketball monopoly on this page by announcing that he has successfully recruited several of the area's "blue chip" high school athletes.

"We're really excited about the kids we got from your area," Carr said. "And Ed (head coach Ed Chlebek) feels that we can build a Mid-American championship team with these prospects."

Among those that Carr got to sign on the dotted line are Jeff Preston (John Glenn), Pat Bledsoe (Wayne Memorial), Mike Plungis (Wayne Memorial), Rick Kruger (Livonia Franklin), Roy Rutherford (Belleville) and Kevin Barnes (Belleville).

Preston, of course, was a key member of John Glenn's unbeaten team a year ago. He accounted for a school record 15 TD's and rushed for more than 900 yards.

Bledsoe is a 3-sports man, lettering in basketball, football and baseball. He quarterbacked Wayne High's team and also pitched Coach Jim Chronowski's Zebras to the semi-finals of the Class A state tornament.

Plungis is an excellent defensive end who had offers from a host of universities. A solid 6-3, 210-pound athlete, Mike won't have any difficulty finding his way into EMU's starting lineup.

Kruger led Livonia Franklin to the inaugural Class A state football championship team and the 6-3, 225-pound tackle is one of the finest linemen to wear a Livonia Franklin uniform.

Rutherford, also a versatile athlete, was the nucleus of the Belleville defensive line, holding down an end slot. He also has lettered in basketball and baseball while Barnes is a speedy running back.

Commenting on the success of the recruiting season, Chlebek said: "Collectively, we feel this is one of the finest groups of football players that we've gotten here at Eastern Michigan in many years.

"We were able to get both the good student and the good athletes — something we had worked very hard to do. Position-wise, we were fortunate to get every spot filled we went after, and thus we are extremely pleased."

Who said that our high school coaches and high schools don't get the job done? And, before we leave the high school wrestling scene, we'd like to congratulate Wayne Memorial's Randy Pittman and Chris Leverenz for their fourth place finishes in the state.

These young athletes exemplify the fine young men we have attending our schools and are a credit to their high schools, their teachers and coaches and parents.

We only hope that many, many more join their ranks as the years go by.

Also, a "thank you" to Jak Warren, the "All-Area" wrestling statistician.

Warren has provided this newspaper with the all-important "agate" — the results for those invitationals, district, regional and state tournaments that few sports writers can compile by themselves.

And Warren's voluntary services has enabled the sports department to give our readers wrestling coverage that we believe is second to none.

Stretching for it

While a Lahser cager looks on as if in awe, John Glenn's Dan Diadiun (40) bends backward to nail this rebound in Friday night's nonleague finale. Glenn wasted Diadiun's 20-point scoring performance, losing to the visitors 63-48. The Westlanders, however, had sewed up the Northwest Suburban championship the previous game.

Belleville falls in league finale

Tigers settle for 3rd place

Belleville played the role of perfect host Friday night and let Dearborn get away with a 70-62 victory and second place in the Suburban 8 Conference basketball finale.

Playing without starting senior guard Kevin Barnes who was out with the flu, Belleville found itself in early foul trouble and struggled unsuccessfully to shake the pesky Pioneers.

"We played a sloppy game," said Belleville Coach Tom Niemi. "and there was no reason for it. After our starters got themselves into foul trouble, they (Dearborn) killed us from the inside — we just couldn't handle their height."

It got so bad that Belleville's 6-0 Cornell Grantham finally ended up guarding Dearborn's 6-7 center, Bill Stucky and that mismatch proved costly.

The Pioneers outscored their hosts 24-13 in the last eight minutes, breaking open what was a close game until then. Belleville held a 19-16 first period edge mainly on the strength of Kelvin Patterson's 10 points in that period.

However, Dearborn outscored their rivals 15-12 to tie the game at halftime 31-all. Niemi's Tigers still had the lead after center Roy Rutherford, Marion Smith and Patterson made frequent exists from the game because of excessive fouls.

"We deserved a lot of things we got because we didn't play well," Niemi added.

Belleville shot 37 percent from the floor, hitting on 26 of 71 and the Tigers made 10-of-18 at the foul line. Dearborn cashed in on 18 of 32 charities and 26-of-64 from the field.

Patterson ended up sharing individual scoring honors with Stucky. Both had 21 points. Rutherford and Alvis Currier also were in double figures for the Tigers, accounting for 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Dearborn had balance scoring. Helping Stucky were Jim Heller and Gary Waxler who pumped in 19 and 10 points, respectively.

The loss left Belleville with a 9-5 record, half-game out of second. Dearborn finished with a 9-4 mark while Plymouth Salem captured its fourth consecutive conference championship.

Belleville managed to come away from Bentley with a 65-59 victory over the Bulldogs. Niemi got his sluggish-moving cagers to run in the fourth period by putting on the press.

Ahead 16-13 and 32-30 after the first two periods, Belleville fell behind 47-42 after three periods but pulled it out with a 23-12 last period with Grantham and Smith each scoring six points.

Smith, inserted in the game in the second period, finished with 17 points and 13 rebounds while Grantham had 19. Patterson counted 10.

Bentley's 6-7 West Germany exchange student, Flo Homm led all scorers with 20 points.

To position jack stands before working under a car whose front wheels must be removed, chock the rear wheels. Then jack up one side until the lower suspension arm that connects the wheel and chassis is lifted higher than the top of the last jack stand. Place one of the stands under the outside end of the arm, directly beneath the coil spring. Lower the car onto the stand and repeat the procedure on the other side to position the second stand. Wheel ramps may be used if you do not need to remove the wheels.

Wayne cagers end jinx of losing close ones

Wayne Memorial pulled out an overtime victory over Taylor Truman Friday night and Coach Bill Hawley feels "that the jinx of losing at the wire has ended."

"We finally won one at the wire instead of losing," Hawley said after the Zebras' nail-biting 57-55 triumph over Truman. "And this is what we needed to get us ready for the districts."

Wayne drew Taylor Center for the first round of district playoffs at Fordson. The game was scheduled for Tuesday night and the winner advances to Thursday's semi-final round against Taylor Kennedy.

Taylor Center is the reigning Great Lakes 8 Conference champ and has beaten Wayne twice in regular league play, however, the second encounter was a close one.

The victory over Truman enabled Wayne to finish in a two-way tie for fifth with Lincoln Park. Both teams posted 5-9 records; Wayne is 7-12 on the year.

Truman's Wally Garner's basket with 14 seconds left tied the game at 51-all, forcing the overtime. Bill Crews got off the final shot for Wayne but it hit the rim and bounced away.

In the overtime, Wayne took the lead when Pat Bledsoe drove in for an easy layup after battling to get possession of the tip. However, Garner scored on a rebound, knotting the game again. Bledsoe's assist on a Crews' basket put the Zebras out in front once more, but Garner again came up with the tying basket.

Tim Couch managed to go into a dribbling act that ate up most of the remaining time but he lost the ball to Truman on a turn-over.

Couch deflected an ensuing Truman pass that Crews recovered, and with six seconds to go, Wayne asked for a time out. When play resumed Couch made a 25-footer which fell clean through the nets for the winning basket.

Wayne had a 17-11 first period lead and stayed out in front 24-20 at the half. Truman outscored their visitors, though, 19-16 in the third period.

The victory cut a six-game Wayne losing streak.

Crews picked up 19 points, the game's high and Couch also was in double figures with 13. Garner and Mitchell split 34 points between them for Truman.

Couch, who hit 28 free throws in a row over a seven-game span to set a league record needed two-for-two to establish a new percentage free-throw record. He had made 47-of-53 for 88.7; Riverview's Gordon Wilder 77-of-85 in 1974 which is good for 90.5.

In a make-up game against Fordson, Wayne didn't have enough scoring power and lost a 71-46 decision. The Zebras fell behind 14-11 at the end of the first period and trailed 30-20 for two periods. Fordson outscored their visitors 14-11 and 27-15 the final two quarters.

Mike Plungis pulled down 14 rebounds, a team high for Wayne which Couch had 11 points, the only player in two figures for the Zebras.

Wayne wasted Plungis's career high 23 points in a 65-61 loss to Riverview. The rugged Wayne senior also led the team on the boards as he nailed down nine rebounds.

Riverview went ahead 18-12 after the first eight minutes and Wayne found itself playing an

Cherry Hill champ again

Spartan tankers win 7th title

By TOM MOORADIAN
Sport Editor

Despite an outbreak of flu which handicapped two key performers, Cherry Hill had little problem retaining its Tri-River Conference swimming and diving championship on Saturday.

The Spartans won their seventh conference championship in nine years by outdistancing a field which included runners-up, Dearborn Heights Riverside (229), Southgate (128), Taylor Kennedy (117), Schafer (107), Garden City West (100), Crestwood (39).

Cherry Hill's 359 team points constituted a league record. Coach Jerry Pawloski's tankers also swept six of the 11 events, including both relays.

"Two of our key swimmers — Wehrmeister (Randy) and Lillie (Scott) had come down with the flu and, of course, were not at their best," Pawloski said. "However, the boys managed to get the job done.

"They deserve a lot of credit because it takes a lot of work and dedication to do what they accomplished," Pawloski continued. "We're all proud of them."

Cherry Hill took a perfect 6-0 record and a 11-2 over-all mark into the league championships which it hosted.

The Spartans' super junior Rick Kogelschatz won two golds, setting a record in the 100-yard butterfly. Rick turned in a 53.05 for the event which is the best time in the state this year. He also won the 50-yard freestyle in 22.6. In the prelims, Kogelschatz' 22.5 established a record for that event.

Mark Cotter also captured two golds for the champs as he missed setting a league record by three-tenths of a second in the 200-yard individual medley and by two-tenths in the 500-yard freestyle. Cotter's times for the events were 2:07.7 and 5:06.6, respectively.

Cherry Hill's winning medley relay team was made up of Craig Tyl, Cotter, Kogelschatz and Dave Koslosky who combined for a 1:45.8, while Eric Wohlfeil, Wehmeister, Gary Schuler and Lillie teamed up for a 3:38.8 to take the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Cherry Hill, which placed fifth in the state last year, will go after the Class B state title on March 11-12 at Ann Arbor. The University of Michigan is the host for the championships.

Unbeaten Wayne swimmer seeks Great Lakes crown

Sweeping all 11 first places, Wayne Memorial trounced Taylor Truman 116-56 in its final Great Lakes 8 Conference dual swim meet of the season.

Coach Jim McPartlin's Zebras will take a perfect 7-0 record into Thursday's conference championships at Taylor Truman. The preliminaries at Truman will begin at 5 p.m. while the finals will be stated 7 p.m. Friday night.

"We're healthy and ready," said McPartlin whose team is chasing after its first conference title. "Barring any unforeseen circumstance, I feel we're in great shape to win it."

It was Senior's Night last Thursday and the Zebras honored their lot by winning all 11 events. Making their final appearances in a dual meet for Wayne were captain Chuck Smallman, Mike Kuhn, the school's record-holder in the 200 and 100 yard freestyles, Tim Thompson, an excellent butterfly and breaststroke specialist and Rick Matheny, a distance freestyler.

Wayne has compiled an impressive 13-1 won-lost record. Cherry Hill was the only team to mar the Zebras' record, but, Coach McPartlin points out, "that Cherry Hill is probably the next Class B state champ."

Crews selected all-conference

Bill Crews, a standout on Wayne Memorial's basketball team, was one of 11 players selected this week by the coaches to the 1976-77 Great Lakes 8 all-conference team.

Crews, a 6-4 senior, led the Zebras in scoring this season and was named to the league's second team.

Fordson's Bill Cilulka was named the conference's MVP and was joined by Tyrone Jordan (Taylor Center), Ken Schubert (Wyandotte), Mike Shafkalis (Taylor Center) and Keith Mitchell (Taylor Truman) on the first team.

Though coaches made their selections regardless of what position the player played during the season, Wayne Memorial's Tim Couch received the 12th most points and just missed making the second team. However, Couch received more votes than any guard in the league.

The coaches in the eight-team conference honored Jim Ryan, of Taylor Center, as Coach of the Year. Ryan led his Rams to the championship, finishing with a 12-2 conference record.

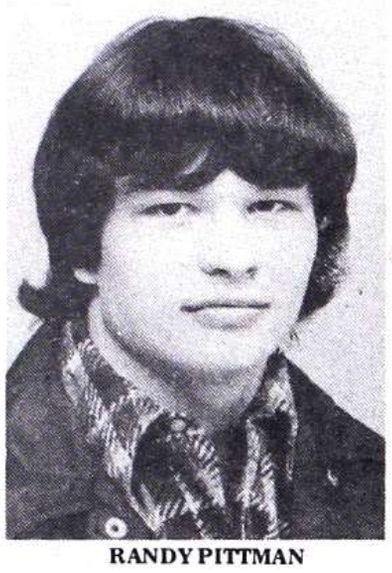
Pittman, Leverenz place 4th in state

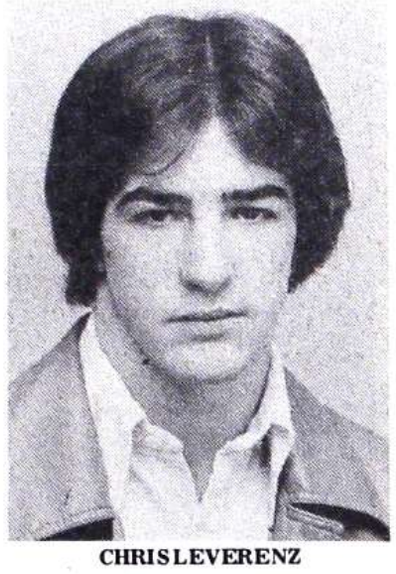
By TOM MOORADIAN
Sports Editor

Wayne Memorial finished a disappointing 14th at the Class A State Wrestling finals held over the weekend at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo.

And Wayne Coach Don Haney was the first to admit it, that "it was disappointing."



RANDY PITTMAN



CHRIS LEVERENZ

"We didn't do as well I as feel we were capable of doing," said the veteran Wayne mentor. "As usual, the competition at the state level was awfully tough.

"However, we just we're not ready for that type of competition," he said.

Wayne, which sent a delegation of seven, to the state finals, came back with a pair of fourth place medalists in Randy Pittman and Chris Leverenz who were the area's best performers.

Pittman finished fourth at 129, while Leverenz earned his fourth place medal at 168.

"I felt that Randy was capable of beating the state champ," Haney pointed out. "But he lost a close match and that knocked him out of the running.

"Chris has exceptional potential and if he continues to work he definitely will be an outstanding wrestler next year," Haney added.

Bedford Temperance, the defending Class A state champ, successfully defended its title. It managed to garner 86 points tc stop Detroit Catholic Central, which had 72, from snatching the coveted state crown away from it.

Wayne placed 14th in a field of more than 80 competing teams. The local contingent had 31½ points and was the only team to return with medalists.

Pittman, a senior making his first appearance in state finals, launched his bid for a medal by pinning South Lake's Tracy Kowalewski in 1:07. For his second test, Pittman ran up against Lansing Everett's Rick Cipicchio and won a 6-0 decision which qualified him for the qurter-finals.

On his return trip to the mats on Saturday, Randy was edged 5-4 by Birmingham Groves's Doug Fierberg who managed a successful stalling tactic.

Pittman then went into the consolation bracket where he defeated Marco Zanetto of Battle Creek Lakeview 5-1 before losing to Bedford's Chuck Joseph for third place.

Joseph avenged a loss to Pittman sustained at the regionals at Ann Arbor Huron a week ago.

Meanwhile, the 168-pound Leverenz, a junior, made his debut by whipping Waterford Mott's Allen Motzny 14-7.

Chris then faced who proved to be the eventual state champ, Pat McKay of Warren Lincoln and lost a 5-2 decision.

In the consolation round, Leverenz rebounded to crush Mt. Clemens' Tim Roggenbuck (L'anse North), 10-2 and went on to beat Rich Wiltse of East Kentwood 14-1 before going on to a close 5-3 victory over Dana Rufener of Muskegon Mona Shores.

Chris's bid for a third place medal was shattered by Bay City Western's Barry Waldie who won a 6-1 decision over the Wayne wrestler.

Cody clips Romulus cage team at-the-buzzer, 56-55

With millage problems and the usual headaches that coaches get trying to field a winning team, Coach Jesse Meriweather received yet another blow last week when starting guard Wendell Buckley sustained a season-ending ankle injury.

Buckley, one of Romulus' top scorers, sustained a severe ankle twist in the fourth period against Detroit Cody and won't be in the line-up this week for the district playoffs.

Romulus lost to Cody at-the-buzzer when Tim Dennis tapped in a rebound to give the Detroiters a narrow 56-55 victory.

"That's the way it has been all year for us," said Meriweather whose Eagles finished the regular season with a 8-10 over-all record.

Romulus came within 37 seconds of its ninth win when senior guard Al Lewis pumped in a jump shot from the corner, lifting the Eagles into the lead, 55-54. However, the taller Detroiters came back and managed to get off a shot that wound up in the basket after three unsuccessful tip-in attempts.

Close all the way, Cody had a one point edge, 16-15, after the first period and 31-30 at halftime. The Detroiters got some breathing room by outscoring their rivals 16-12 in the third period but a Romulus comeback attempt, sparked by Lewis almost turned the tide.

Buckley went down with two minutes elapsed in the fourth period. He finished with 11 points, his team's second best scoring performance.

Lewis, who drilled in seven from the field and four free throws for 18 points, was the game's leading scorer.

"We just couldn't get ourselves going," Meriweather commented. "we went through the motions and, of course, when we lost Wendell we lost a lot of our scoring punch."

Meriweather said it was a disappointing season for him, "because I had a goal of winning at least 14 of our 20 games and, of course, we didn't reach that goal."

Lewis however had a spectacular year as he came within 27 points of joining Romulus' elite "1000 Club".

"I figure he's one of the best guards that have ever come through here," Meriweather noted. "Minnesota, New Orleans and many other universities have asked about him."

Romulus clashed with Belleville Tuesday night in the first round of the Class A district playoffs held at Ypsilanti. The winner of that Tuesday night game was to meet Temperance Bedford on Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the simi-final round.

The championship at Ypsilanti will be decided 7:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Franklin rally nips GC East

A come-from-behind 46-44 victory over Garden City East was just what Coach Bob Visser and Livonia Franklin needed to get ready for the district playoffs.

"I feel we're ready for the tournament now," Visser said. "We're playing tough defense and very deliberate — almost to the point of a stall — offense, and that makes me optimistic about our chances in district play."

Franklin is slated to see district action at Livonia Churchill. The defending district champ drew a first round bye and will play Wednesday at 7 p.m. against the winner of the Detroit Pershing and Bentley game.

Franklin's victory over East gave the Patriots' a 3-5 Northwest Suburban record, good for a two-way tie for third place. Franklin finished the regular season with a 7-13 over-all mark.

The Livonians didn't catch East until the fourth period where they outscored Coach Billy Joe Young's Panthers 13-6. Jim Wilson's three-point play with seconds remaining broke a 43-all deadlock and give Franklin the victory.

"This was a timely victory," Visser added. "This game should boost our confidence for the district playoffs."

East snapped a 11-all first period knot by outscoring their league rivals 18-12 in the second period to take a 28-23 halftime lead.

Franklin's Dave Wilson hit on five field goals and 5 of 6 fouls for 15, the game's high.

Franklin won the game at the free throw line where it realized 14 of 20 free throws. East slipped in eight of 16. The patriots also shot 44 percent from the floor (16 of 34)) while East canned 18 of 30.

It was the fourth period that led to Franklin demise, however, in their 48-43 setback at the hands of Thurston earlier in the week.

Thurston hit on five of six free throws in the final period to turn the tide.

"Everything seemed to go against us in that fourth period," Visser said. "It was an even game until then."

Zannis counted 14 points for the Patriots, the team's high while Smith added 12.

MOVING DAY!
"Go ahead, take advantage of us while we're confused!"
Al Dunning—DEALER

Well, today's the day. The one we've been dreading. We're moving our operation to 2867 Washtenaw. We just know that while we're moving, we won't know which end is up. There are papers to sign, offices to furnish, cars and trucks to move—and we'll still be doing business at the old place until next Monday. Pretty confusing, huh? Bet you're going to try and take advantage of us by getting a quick deal on one of our beautiful new Toyotas, Peugeots, or Alfa Romeos when we really can't take the time to haggle. Oh well, come on ... take advantage of us.

Beginning Monday, February 28, we're open for business at 2867 Washtenaw, 1 mile east of US 23 (across from K Mart).

ABOUT COOKING WITH CHEESE

Like all protein foods, cheese is adversely affected by high heat or prolonged cooking. Although pasteurized process cheese products are less susceptible to heat than natural cheese, it is advisable to follow these two rules of cheese cookery:

1. Use low to medium heat.
2. Do not overcook - heat just until cheese melts.

*When adding to hot foods, shred natural cheese and cube or slice process cheese.
*When making a sauce, add cheese at the end of cooking time and heat until melted.
*When broiling, place pan so that cheese is several inches below heat source; broil just until cheese melts.
*When cheese is used in baked dishes, bake at low (325° F.) to moderate (375° F.) temperatures.
*When topping a casserole, place cheese on top for the last few minutes of baking.
*Four ounces of natural or process cheese equals 1 cup shredded or cubed cheese.
*Shred natural cheese that is to be melted in sauces, toppings or other foods. (Cheese can also be purchased already shredded in convenient packages.)
*Cube process cheese products when adding to other foods. It will melt quickly and blend easily.
*Parmesan type cheeses are usually grated or shredded. Grated is finer and drier than shredded.
*Cream cheese and Neufchatel blend readily with other ingredients if first allowed to soften at room temperature.

Lightly oil a piece of foil, large enough to enclose fish. Place frozen fish in the shiny side of foil, sprinkle with salt, lemon juice, and 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, if desired. Seal foil with double folds, pinching to make steamtight. Place on baking pan and oven-steam in hot oven preheated to 475 degrees F. Steam for 40 minutes...fish wil flake with a fork. Serves 2 to 3 persons.

WE SALUTE THE MEN WHO MEASURE UP.

When you make a purchase at the food store, fill your tank with gasoline at the service station, or buy any merchandise bu weight or by measurement, you think the transaction is only between you and the vendor. It may be a surprise to know that every such transaction is participated in by a third man even though he is not present in person.

The "third man" is the Weights and Measures Official who checks all weighing and volume measuring devices used in sales made to the public. This "third man" is always present in spirit, protecting both buyer and seller. He is a dedicated man working quietly and tirelessly to save customers money...and to safeguard vendors' businesses. Errors in either direction, over or under, will cause someone to suffer.

So at Chatham we rotate the men who measure-up to help us all.
